Tracy Landis exhibits grand champion steer At Solanco

By DEBRA STRICKLER

QUARRYVILLE – Tracy Landis and Bernie Houghton two first year competitors were tapped by judge Ron Bolze of Loysville, Perry County, to win champion honors at the Solanco 4-H and FFA Steer Show.

In the 4-H competition, Tracy Landis, a first year exhibitor, took the champion honors with her Angus steer named Tonka. Tonka went on to be named the grand champion steer of the entire show.

Nine year old Tracy is a member of the Red Rose Beef and Sheep Club and is the daughter of James and Linda Landis of Quarryville. Tracy explained that her father was not permitted to show an animal. As a result, he has encouraged her to become involved in 4-H. The 1085 pound grand champion steer was purchased from Sam Wiley.

The reserve champion show steer was exhibited by Fritz Frey of Quarryville, R2. He exhibited a first place middleweight Chianina-Angus cross in his fourth year of competition. Frey also took reserve honors in the senior showmanship competition. He is the 12 year old son of Fred and June Frey. The reserve champion was born and raised on their farm.

In the FFA classes, Bernie Houghton took the championship with his heavyweight Chianina-Hereford-Angus cross steer. As a sophomore at Solanco High School, this also was his first year in competition. Bernie is the 16 year old son of Ronald and Betsy Houghton of Christiana, R1. The Houghton family raise horses on their farm.

Troy Groff of Quarryville, R2, took the reserve honors in the FFA competition. Troy is a senior at Solanco High School and is the son of James and Linda Groff.

Sam Long, an experienced showman, took the grand championship of the senior showmanship competition. Sam had taken the champion honors for his brother at last year's State Farm Show and is already preparing for this year's competition, with his Limousine-Angus cross. He is the 18 year old son of Sam and Marian Long of Peach Bottom, R2, and is a member of the Solanco FFA chapter and the Red Rose Beef and Sheep 4-H Club.

Tom Herr of Quarryville, R2, took the championship in the junior showman competition.

Following is a list of show results:

Kerry Boyd exhibits top hog at Elizabethtown

By KENDACE BORRY

ELIZABETHTOWN — Kerry Boyd walked out of the ring a winner again, at the Elizabethtown Fair's hog show Wednesday night. The 20 year old Ephrata FFA'er showed his mediumweight, weighing 225 pounds to the top spot.

But, as Boyd pointed out later, it no longer is simply a solitaire act for him. Receiving congratulations, he was quick to point out that half the credit for the win should go to his wife, Deb, who helps with the exercising and fitting of the hogs.

Boyd showed a littermate to the champion he exhibited at the FFA roundup this Summer, with the grandsire being Big Bullet and the sow out of Indy champ. It was a threeway crossbred, with Duroc, York, Hampshire.

The reserve champion hog was also a mediumweight, shown by seven year old Dwayne Coble, of Hershey. This was his second show of the youth's career and first champion.

Close to 70 hogs were shown at the show with judge Ron Harrison, Littlestown, officiating.

Lightweight champion was shown by David Coble, Jr. brother of the reserve grand champion. The hog weighed 205 pounds. The reserve champion lightweight at 212 pounds, was shown by Kerry Boyd.

In the heavyweight division, Sheldon Heisey's 254 pound hog was named champion. Peggy Mullen showed at the reserve champion hog, weighing 251 pounds. Both are from the Elizabethtown area.

In the junior showmanship classes, 15 years and under, Sheldon Heisey placed first, and his brother Steven was second.

Kerry Boyd showed this champion hog at the Elizabethtown Fair hog show Wednesday night. The animal is a littermate to his August county FFA champion.

Kirk brothers dominate Solanco Guernsey show

By SALLY BAIR
Staff Writer

For Robert and Tom Kirk, Peach Bottom R1, the Solanco Fair was a good place to be on Wednesday. The Kirk brothers dominated the Guernsey show, taking all the championship spots.

Grand champion belonged to Robert Kirk, 16, who is a sophomore at Solanco High School and was showing his FFA project. The four-year-old, Cedar Fringe Ingrett, was also a senior champion.

Reserve Grand Champion honors went to Tom Kirk, whose senior yearling, Cedar Fringe Bessie Lee, was named junior champion. Tom, 18, graduated from Solanco High School last year, and is now farming with his father Francis. Reserve junior champion and reserve senior champion belonged to Francis Kirk and was shown by daughter Mary.

Between them, the Kirks showed eight animals, some belonging to their father, and took a high percentage of first places in their respective classes. In the best udder class, Robert Kirk was first and his father owned the second place animal. They were also first and second in the dam-daughter class. Asked how it

MR. SULLIVAN COMMENTS ABOUT HIS XL'S:
This is my first flock of Moyer's DEKALB I am impressed by the "forgivability" of these birds. Their production remains very stable through temperature, environmental or mechanical stresses. My XL's peaked at over 92% and at 55 wks. were still at 80%. Total mortality to 66 wks. is less than 5%!

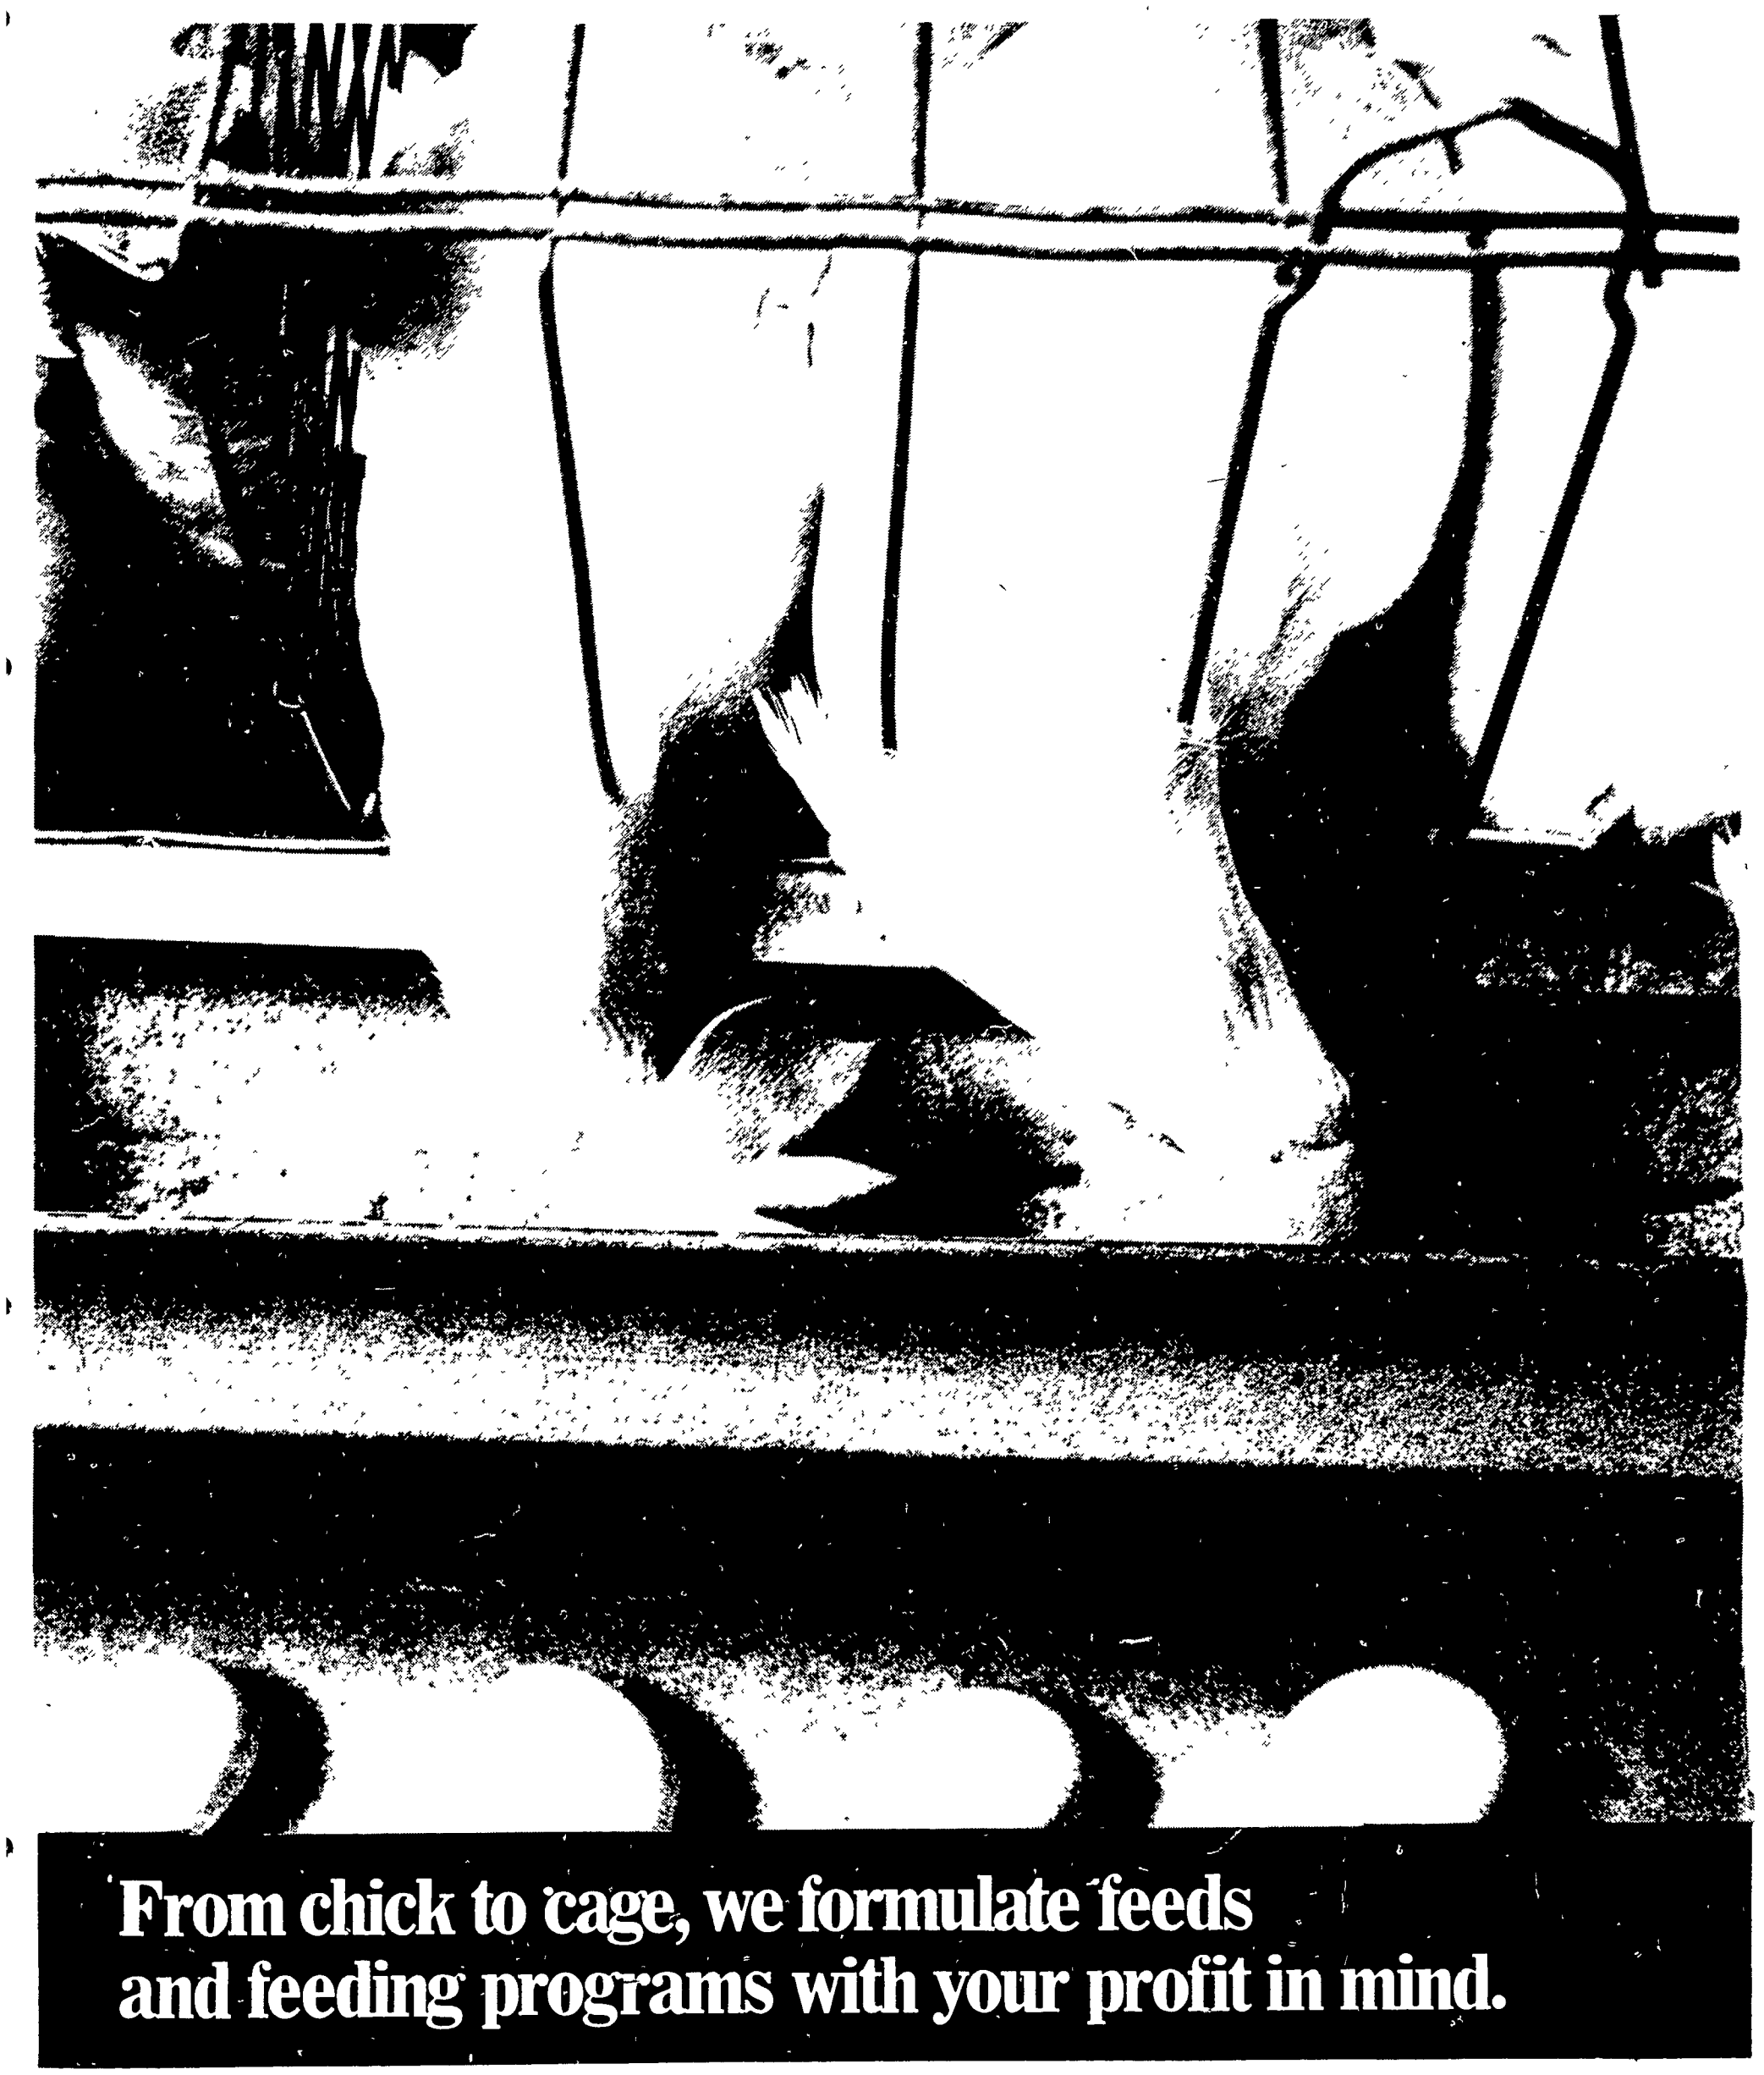
HUBBARD WHITE MT. BROILERS



From chick to cage, we formulate feeds and feeding programs with your profit in mind.

Do you have an open mind?

Are you ready to devote an hour or two of your time planning for a more profitable future?

If your answer to both questions is yes you owe it to yourself to read what we have to say.

Unlike many other feed companies we develop custom feeding programs for each individual operation.

It all starts with a Pennfield man reviewing your operation with you. Your goals. Your records. The health and overall condition of your birds. Whether you grow chicks or buy started pullets. The type of equipment you use. The production potential of your flock. Your management practices. And other factors that have an effect on your profit potential.

With the aid of computers we then design a feeding program specifically tailored to your birds needs - a program that can improve your profits by reducing expenses, increasing production or both.

For example, when we recommend producers switch from a competitive 18% protein feed to an Optimum Nutrient Density Pennfield feed, there was no loss in production—and this one recommendation has saved as much as $12,000 a year depending on flock size.

There is no cost—or obligation—for this unique service. But you must take the first step by writing or phoning us. Do it today.

Compared previous midweek, slaughter steers through Wednesday were mostly 50 higher; heifers steady to 50 lower. Cows were 2.00-3.00 higher on small receipts, bulls 1.00 higher. Fleshy steers returning to country for further feeding were weak to 1.00 lower.

Four day receipts	10,400
Last week	14,000
Year ago	13,775

Although receipts early were moderate, prices turned downward with Monday declines most severe on heifers. Marketings were curtailed sharply Wednesday, forcing a price recovery. However, no steers or heifers were on offer Thursday when demand again turned cautious in reflection of a dull dressed beef trade. Best demand remained for choice yield grade 3 cattle although much of the steer supply consisted of new crop 1050-1150 lb. weights. Approximately 750 head 900-1100 lb. steers returned to the country for further feeding, most of these purchased the first two days of trading. Slaughter steers made up approximately 31 percent of the week's total receipts, heifers 32 percent, cows 10 percent and feeders 22 percent.

STEERS: Choice 2-4 1050-1275 lbs. at midweek 68.50-70.00, several loads mostly yield grade 3 some including few prime 69.75-70.00. Good 2-3 63.00-67.50, few good and choice Holsteins 61.00-62.50.

Average of LS-214 detailed quotations for choice 900-1100 lb. Steers this week 68.82, choice 1100-1300 lbs. 69.02. Average weight steers this week 1139 lbs. as compared 1150 lbs. the previous week. Average weight heifers for this week 995 lbs. as compared 979 lbs. the previous week.

The air has a crisp edge now. The early mornings see the sun rise slightly slower, and the first frost has gently touched the green.

Harvest-time is here. Now is the final countdown when the farmer gets the real picture of just how good or bad this growing season has been for him. It's time to fill the silo, reap the fields, and prepare in earnest for the long Winter ahead.

Tractors can be heard long into the night, and he is usually up and working before many of his neighbors even know the new day has arrived

The family hurries to help with students who reluctantly go to school, jumping off the schoolbus, and hurry into the house, to quickly change into their work clothes.

And farm wives despair of ever getting the family fed, as their schedules are often punctured with requests to help outside.

Outside there is subtle change in the air. It's as if Nature herself is urging everyone to do all they can today, for she can't promise what the weather will be tomorrow. Gone are the golden rays of Summer, with the rich red and browns of Fall slowly etching their way into the landscape

This then is Fall--the time when the final reckoning is felt across the land. While farmers are no longer as dependent on their own harvest to see them through the Winter as the men of yesteryears, he knows that harvesttime is like his final exam, to tell whether he's outwitted the problems that he has faced throughout the growing season.

And while the farmer may be terse and harried through this busy time, underneath his hard exterior, you may glimpse a smile as he brings a bountiful harvest into the barn, or beats the rain by working far into the night.

This is one of the challenges that draws men into farming.

TEACH THE FAITH !

Lesson for September 23, 1979

Background Scripture:
1 Thessalonians 1;
Titus.
Devotional Reading:
1 Timothy 4:6-16.

The familiar admonition today is, "Keep the faith!"

But it is hard to "keep" the faith if "keeping" means to hang on to something. Like many other things in life, the faith can only be "kept", if we are willing to give it away in some manner. Often, we retain something only when we are willing to share it. So, if we are to "keep the faith", we will need also to share the faith.

SOUND DOCTRINE

In Paul's letter to Titus, he counsels him, "teach what befits sound doctrine" (2:1). These words might easily lead us to envision a classroom setting with a teacher lecturing to students on the various theological propositions of Christianity. "Teaching" suggests to us a thoroughly academic experience.

If we continue further in this passage, however, it is obvious that when Paul says "teach", he means to teach by example, not by scholastic techniques: "Bid the older men be temperate, serious, sensible, sound in faith, in love, and in steadfastness" (2:3). Paul is not talking about teaching ideas, but of witnessing through daily living what Christianity is all about.

This was also the heart of Paul's ministry. To be sure, he was a powerful preacher and teacher and his mind was a brilliant one. But Paul did not rely solely upon his powers of oral persuasion. Like his master, Paul taught mostly by example: "You know what kind of men we proved to be among you" (1 Thessalonians 1:5). His deepest impression on the people of Thessalonica was dependent, not upon his eloquent speech, but his conduct in their midst.

Be Imitators Of Us!

Nor was Paul simply trying to earn the admiration of the Thessalonians; to the contrary, he was attempting to give them a style of living that they could imitate. "And you became imitators of us and of the Lord" (1:6) It was not a case of "Do as I say, not as I do," for Paul wanted them to copy him as he believed that he copied Christ. As the old saying goes: "What you are speaks so loudly that I can't hear you."

The beautiful thing about this kind of imitation is that, once set in motion it can become contagious. The people at Thessalonica witnessed Paul's conduct and copied him. In turn, their behavior became a powerful teaching thrust to other Christians beyond the city limits of Thessalonica: "you became an example to all the believers in Macedonia and in Achaia" (1:6).

The gift of words is a wonderful gift to the person who would preach or teach to others. Words can stir and inspire us - they can even change our lives. But for the most part, the best and most effective teaching of the faith is the faith that is demonstrated in lives that consciously attempt to imitate our Lord.

TO CONSIDER YOUR AGRICULTURAL IMAGE

How do you rate as a farmer in your community? Does the general appearance of your farm and buildings encourage non-farm folks to consume more farm products? This question should be answered with a "yes". I realize that most commercial farmers are very busy with livestock and crop work; many do not seem to have time to consider the appearance of their farmstead. However, this is an important item to non-farm folks driving through the rural areas. No doubt an attractive place will encourage city folks to visit the country and perhaps some of the farms. On the other hand, a very untidy, poorly managed place will sour folks from using farm products. Good relations with all neighbors and a good farm image in the community is very important.

TO PREPARE HEATING SYSTEMS

Cold weather is approaching when all types of heating systems will be put into use. Too many fires have been started because of defective flues, chimneys, and furnaces. In this part of the state, the stove sytems in tobacco barns should get a good inspection. The mortar between the brick in some chimneys may need replaced. Rusted or poorly-connected flues need repaired. Some chimneys may need cleaned before cold weather arrives. All of these will be needed later this winter. Proper maintenance and close inspection now may prevent serious fires and losses later in the fall or winter.

TO CONTROL WEEDS IN NEW ALFALFA

Recent growing conditions have favored the growth of both alfalfa and weeds. In many cases the broad-leaf weeds will crowd out the small alfalfa plants, if not controlled. August seedings of alfalfa without a nurse crop need some weed protection. One suggested practice is to spray the area with 2,4-D-B when the growth is 2 to 3 inches high. This will knock out the broadleaf weeds without harming the alfalfa plants. If the weeds are permitted to develop larger, they will be hard to kill without hurting the alfalfa. Alfalfa seeding is an expensive practice; this investment needs protection by controlling the weeds. Many good stands of alfalfa have been ruined by excessive weed growth.

TO MANAGE TEMPORARY SILAGE STORAGE

Many livestock and dairy producers do not have space for all of their silage crops. The horizontal silo is practical when properly handled. This means chopping the silage fine, packing it well with a heavy wheel tractor, and sealing out the air within 48 hours after filling. Black plastic is commonly used to seal out the air. This can be held down by soil, ground limestone, or with old tires. The important things is get it well packed and tightly sealed. Surface water drainage should be kept out of the silage area; this can be done with a drainage ditch around the horizontal silo. Children, pets, and all livestock should be kept from the top of the silage.

Roasting grain helps increase profits

LEBANON — Anyone who is in the production of livestock or poultry for profit should be feeding rations of roasted grains and high-energy roasted soybeans. It is profitable for everyone from the smallest family farm to the largest cattle ranch to feed roasted grains. A pound of roasted soybeans is exchanged for a pound of soybean meal.

Dry heat at a high temperature destroys the toxic enzymes in the raw soybeans which interferes with digestion and growth in all animals. The beans become highly polatable and the new-found energy goes to work. Soybeans are naturally well balanced with body building protein, and naturally high in essential vitamins, mineral and trace elements. It also changes the fat from saturated fat to unsaturated fat.

The roasting of corn destroys mold and changes the starches to dextrin, a simple form of carbohydrate that can be readily digested and more freely utilized by the animal. The process of roasting in the open flame gives sterilization of the grain, reducing toxicity. Herbicide carryover microscopic mold and fungus are greatly reduced. This process enables you to feed out-of-condition grain.

The oil is the most important material retained in a whole roasted soybean. It is a tremendous source of concentrated energy. By roasting it, it is converted to a more digestable form.

The second most important material remaining in the bean is soy lecithin. Lecithin increases the speed and degree of emulsification, stabilizes vitamins, is a natural source of choline and inosital, is a good source of "available" phosphorus, provides 2¼ times as much energy as a carbohydrate, and is an antioxidant property to deter rancidity and keeps feed fresh and palatable

In recent years, dairymen have become aware of the need for meeting the energy requirements of his cows. The roasted soybean is making a fantastic breakthrough. Dairymen consistently report an immediate increase in butterfat from 2-6 tenths of 1%. This means approximately 10 cents per hundred increase.

Packing extra energy into the ration has consistently increased the herds production average with a decreased amount of feed. This means more milk on less feed. Most dairymen report a general improvement in herd health which results in lower vet bills. The decrease in vet bills alone have covered the roasting costs in most cases. Roasted soybeans reduces aborting and produces healthier calves. Slicker coats improve the over all herd appearances.

Roasting of corn for hogs has additional benefits. Mold that cannot be seen with the naked eye as well as mold that can be seen is destroyed by roasting and eliminates tail biting and restlessness. Roasted corn requires only half as much power to grind as raw corn. Roasting corn removes moisture and eliminates drying. Daily weight gains are greater and hogs are ready for market earlier on less feed

Feeder pigs get off to a better, faster start with fresh roasted beans Hogs fed roasted grains have a consistent grade increase of 10%, a profit of two to three cents per pound live weight. According to both tests and testimonials, combining roasted soybeans and roasted corn in the ration, gives hog producers a greatly improved feed efficiency.

Roasting beans and corn for poultry produces excellent benefits, better health grade and yield, while enhancing the broiler's flavor. Commercial egg layers maintain a better and longer lay with fine quality eggs, with a savings of four pounds of feed per one hundred hens per day.

Breeders have better production, hatchability, and liveability. Chicks, ducklings and gooslings, fed roasted grains where molds are destroyed and toxins are retarded are more contented, healthier and happier.

An Iowa state test on feeder cattle showed undigested whole kernel passage to be 14 per cent for raw corn as compared to only 2 per cent for roasted corn. Several other tests show more of the steers on a roasted grain ration grade higher on the market.

Roasting soybeans for protein means you can raise your own soybeans on your own farm, and have them roasted with a portable roaster right on your own farm. This means a savings on transportation and time, no delivery charges, higher nutritive value and the growth stimulating properties of soybean oil and lecithin in the feed.

That's the goal behind an alfalfa, grain and Vigortone Dairy Pre-Mix feeding program. It helps you take maximum advantage of the protein and energy already in your home-grown feedstuffs.

And legume roughage is a good source of protein; but it's low in phosphorus and other nutrients so important to the needs of all dairy cows.

That's where Vigortone Dairy Pre-Mixes help These potent pre-mixes are specially formulated for the feeds grown on your farm and contain the proper amount of phosphorus to balance the calcium content of your legume roughages

Vigortone Dairy Pre-Mixes also furnish the minerals, vitamins and other nutrients so important to good nutrition and better milk production. Special ingredients promote proper digestion and assimilation of rations, so your cows benefit more from less feed.

QUARRYVILLE — Paul Herr took grand championship honors in the Jersey show at the Solanco Fair on Wednesday with Morning Glory, a two-year-old daughter of Generator. Paul, Holtwood R1, says it isn't the first time he has had champion of the show, but it's the first in a while since he didn't even have time to show last year.

Jere Shertzer, Lancaster R6, owned the junior yearling which was named junior champion and reserve grand champion. Shertzer just happens to be the grandson of Herr, so the championship honors stayed in one family. Shertzer's junior yearling is a Generator granddaughter and is his 4-H project animal. She was named champion of the 4-H show.

Neal Hough, Peach Bottom, showed the senior reserve champion, the winner of the three and four-year-old class. Reserve junior champion went to Patricia Jenkins' senior yearling, Clearview Criterion's Holly, who also was named reserve grand champion of the youth show.

Patricia, 17, also was named as the outstanding showman of the day. A Chester County 4-H'er, Patricia is an eight year veteran member of the Southern Chester County Dairy Club. When asked if she worked hard to get her animals prepared for the showing contest, she replied, "We've gone to a lot of other shows.

Energy conservation theme of Berks Co. tour

BY LAUREL SCHAEFFER
Staff Correspondent

HAMBURG—Energy conservation was the theme of this years' conservation tour sponsored by the Berks County Soil Conservation Service, Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service, Conservation District, Cooperative Extension Service, and Farmers Home Administration, on September 14.

Featured in the day long tour were visits to several Berks County farms, which were experimenting or successfully using alternate sources of energy. These practices included a solar grain dryer, an evaporation cooling system, methane gas production from manure, drainage ditches with underground pipes used to trap excess soil water which is released in dryer soil conditions and a wind turbine, used to generate electricity.

The Mehrkam Wind Turbine, designed and manufactured by Terrence and Douglas Mehrkam, Hamburg, R2, is used to supply a very substantial amount of the electricity used by their various enterprises. This includes Energy Development Company, Windsor Nursery, and their farm enterprise where they operate a 12,000 hen layer operation.

Being completely automatic, the wind turbines are built in four sizes ranging from 40 to 225 Kilowatts maximum output. They are set up and tied into power lines after an electrical meter used to measure the amount of electricity bought from power companies so as not to be charged to the owner. Excess electricity not being consumed by the turbine owner is automatically sold back to the utility company.

Mehrkam stressed however that the turbines are not a system for total independance. "The wind doesn't blow all the time," he explained. But it was also noted that there is more available wind in winter when a larger amount of electricity would be consumed, especially if electric heat were used.

The turbines need a minimum of nine mile per hour winds to generate electricity. Mehrkam also commented that they are practical for farm operations and are very reliable. Their yearly maintenance consists of approximately five dollars worth of grease a year. "Utilities companies have been very cooperative with our Turbines," he added.

The rather high intital costs can be offset by the many tax advantages available and the great decrease in commercial electrical usage. Mehrkam estimated the average payback period would probably be seven years and the life of the turbines should be a very minimum of ten.

The Mehrkam wind turbine can be built for under 700 dollars per kilowatt, which is much lower than other turbines on the market, Mehrkam also mentioned. He noted that the larger turbine will have a lower cost per kilowatt.

Other hosts included, Mountain View Farms, Donald Landis, Fred Bohn and Sons, and Winfield J. Finkbiner.

Participants in the Berks County Conservation Tour included Clyde Bauer and Duane Bysher of the Soil Conservation Service. Douglas Mehrkam is part-owner of the Mehrkam wind turbine, which was a feature of the tour, as it uses a minimum of nine mile per hour winds to generate electricity. Also pictured is Henry Bohn of the Agricultural Stabilization Service.

COMMENTS FROM READERS

Dear Editor: We have always felt trappers in general were grateful for the privilege to trap on private Farm and Forest land.

However we have come across documented evidence that the Penna. Trappers Association has been directly responsible for introducing H.B. 1150 which would bring a potential $300.00 fine in case our Watch dog, pet or beagle pursued a deer for the second time. The proposed fine for a first offense is $150.00.

Personally I wonder are trappers wise in shaking their fists in this manner at those on whom they depend over 50% to pursue their activity?

Few are the rural residents of Pennsylvania who have not at some time felt the unpleasant effects of trapping.

We urge Farmers of Pennsylvania, Pet Owners and rural residents, let your Legislators know your wishes on these matters.

For my part let Section 717; of the Penna. Game Laws as they are.

For those wishing to write Rep. Edward W. Helfrick, B2, Main Capitol Bldg., Harrisburg, Pa. 17120 is one of the members of the Game and Fisheries Committee.

Respectfully,
John Kutz

Jenny Wunderlich working towards third Pa. 4-H championship

Jenny Wonderlich, Lebanon, will be representing her county 4-H again this year in the Junior Saddleseat Equitation class.

LEBANON — For Jenny Wunderlich, 4-H means horses, Saddlebreds to be exact.

At age 13, the Lebanon member of the North Cornwall Trail Blazers has already won the state 4-H championship in the Saddleseat Equitation Junior division. And by winning the District competition again last Saturday, she is well on her way to her third one.

Jenny, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe F. Wonderlich, Lebanon, has been involved in 4-H for five years, and with horses "all her life".

Her present mount is Anachacos's Encore, a nine year old Reg. Saddlebred that she has had for six years and used as her 4-H mount for two.

Her horse is trained in Allentown and twice a week or more often if she can, she travels to ride and train her horse.

She considers that concentration on the position of her legs, her hands, and her posture are the most important things in equitation. And those are the things she works on in her practicing.

Calling horses a hobby, she stated that they're "a lot of fun" and through her showing, she told that she meets "many nice people".

A veteran of many horse shows, she is qualified to show in all the equitation classes for her age, including good hands, AHSA medal class, UPHA 15, the 13 and under age group, Jr. Exhibitors three gaited.

Her Horse is a three gaited Saddlebred, one of four that her family owns. Jenny is the youngest of three children and her parents told that all of the family is involved in showing the horses in open shows.

The secretary of her 4-H club, Jenny told that getting her horse ready for competition is a lot of work, although fun. Besides the constant riding to keep her animal trained, she related taht on the day of the show, she grooms her horse about two hours a day, just to make him shine. Then their is the tail brace to be put on, the trimming that has to be done, and the feet that must be shod just so. But Saddlebreds have been her favorite since the beginning, she stated, "just because I like the way that they go."

Besides her showing in 4-H competition, she has shown in many open shows including some in New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, Kentucky, New York, and the Penn National and Quentin horse shows in Pennsylvania.

Calling the equitation class her specialty, she plans to continue showing in that event until she is 18 years old.

Time to soil test farmland

NEWARK, Del. - With the harvest season finally underway, this is a good time to start making plans for testing soil.

Fall is a good time to take soil samples, says University of Delaware Extension soil specialist Leo J. Cotnoir. The land is clear so it's relatively easy to get around to different parts of a field. Moisture is usually good now, too, so samples are easy to take without the excessive wetness one often runs into in the Spring.

Another advantage to getting soil tested now is that one will have the information he needs to do the liming early this Winter, when there'll be less soil damage from trucks passing over the fields. Liming in late Fall or early Winter also will give the lime time to react with the soil and get pH values up to desirable levels by cropping time next year.

When one takes soil samples right after harvest, he may also get a better sampling from problem areas in a field, points out Cotnoir. This is because memory of reduced yields from these spots should still be fresh in mind.

The value of any soil test depends on the accuracy of sampling techniques, of course. One should make sure that each sample represents as uniform an area as possible.

A person should not include soil from that poor corner where the corn didn't do so well in with that from the good ground in the rest of the field. Instead, one should take a separate sample for this poor spot, so he can find out just what's wrong with it.

One shouldn't combine a soil sample from the manured half of a field with one from the unmanured half, either. The combined sample will represent neither half.

A person should take samples to plow depths in most cases. In no-till corn fields, samples should be taken to 7 to 8 inches. For this crop one may also want to take a second sample representative of only the surface couple of inches. This thin surface layer may become more acid than the soil below due to surface application of fertilizers. And such an acid surface layer may deactiviate herbicides next Spring and result in weed problems.

One needs to take soil from at least 20 spots in a field to get a good sample. In most cases, though, a single sample shouldn't represent more than 100 acres. A person can divide larger fields and take several samples, each of these consisting of at least 20 cores. Soil fertility levels can vary markedly, even in apparently uniform fields. One can't skimp on the number of spots he includes in a sample and expect it to be reliable.

One shouldn't forget to identify samples right away. A person can quickly forget where all that dirt came from, if he hasn't taken the trouble to identify samples at the time they were taken.

The best method, says Cotnoir, is to develop a map of his farm and assign a number to each field. Then he can always use that number with samples from that field. This will help keep them identified and it will make it possible to compare test results from one year to the next. Soil test data is most useful when it permits several years to be compared.

If the value of a certain nutrient is gradually going down in these tests, it's a pretty safe bet that one needs more of that nutrient. On the other hand, if levels are gradually going up, one may well be able to reduce the amount used, says Cotnoir.

In comparing soil test from year to year, a person should remember that values tend to change from Fall to Spring. For instance, pH and potassium levels tend to be lower in the Fall than in the Spring. So ideally one should compare a Fall test only with other tests taken at the same time of year.

Berks County PFA members learn of PACMA

By LAUREL SCHAEFFER
Staff Correspondent

FLEETWOOD - Berks County farmers were given an opportunity to see first hand, the type of cattle which can be purchased through the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association PACMA services on September 13.

Hosting the meeting was Robert Kopfer of Fleetwood. Kopfer had just received a shipment of sixty head of feeder cattle averaging about 750 pounds each through the program and was very pleased with the program.

On hand to explain the services and answer any questions was PACMA cattle buyer, Howard Sparlin. He explained that he travels from farm to farm to obtain the type of cattle needed to fill his orders. Once purchased, the cattle are weighed and shipped directly to their buyer's destination. "We eliminate as much stress as posssible by going farm to farm," he said. "And there is no worrying about sale barns," the buyer added.

The cattle are usually purchased from the southern states such as Virginia and West Virginia. "Their cattle are just as good as the cattle from the Midwest," Sparlin remarked. Poor cattle are eliminated on the farms at once, with approximately 90 per cent of the cattle purchased through PACMA grading out as choice.

Sparlin explained that the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association has outstanding working relations with the other State Farm Bureaus in regard to feeder cattle purchases. But added that at times it has been difficult to obtain the cattle wanted. "Sometimes it may take three weeks to fill an order," he remarked.

Robert Kopfer of Fleetwood hosted a meeting for Berks County PFA members concerning the PACMA service. Kopfer, left, had recently purchased feeder cattle through the program. Howard Sparlin, PACMA cattle buyer and Jack Kooker, Berks County Farmers' Association participated in the meeting.

"The competition in bidding is high," he explained. Presently we are buying them when we see them, he continued, "you don't get a second chance to go back and look again."

To order cattle through the PACMA program, a farmer must be a member of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association, or in some instances may be charged a service fee amounting to the same figure. Cattle are described as close as possible to the prospective buyers and are quoted a price. If the prospective buyer wants the cattle they are shipped directly to him.

All trucking arrangements are made by PACMA, and included in the price of the cattle. The cattle price also includes the commission and insurance. "The insurance is worth quite a bit alone," Sparlin remarked. It covers the cattle from the loading point until 24 hours after delivery. Any cattle which develop problems or die within this period will be refunded if PACMA is notified in enough time.

Once fattened, the cattle can be sold through PACMA again. They are sold on a dressed weight basis and a commission of three dollars per head is charged.

Hogs can also be purchased and sold through a similar program.

Sparlin also commented that he doesn't believe there will be a let up in feeder cattle prices for quite some time. But added that the emphasis will be on how the grain harvest does and what it's prices are.

However, he also told the farmers present that there will be enough cattle for the people with the money.

WHAT'S NEW

ADULT TURKEY WATERER

MILDFORD, Ind. - A new design Adult Turkey Waterer has been released by Chore-Time Equipment. A group of engineered structural features enables the new waterer to withstand the punishment turkeys dish out.

According to Pres Rigterink, Product Development Manager, the shape of the water reservoir, the method of suspension, and the location of the dust shield combine to prevent spillage. This results in dry litter under the waterer, he said.

Drier litter, said Rigterink, promotes better bird health and less stress, saves the cost of replacing litter, and saves labor so more time is available for better bird management.

The waterer's porcelain enameled steel pan is 5½ inches deep with a 2¾-inch outward-inclined lip at a 45 degree angle. Even at maximum water depth (1½ inches) there is not sufficient volume of water to slosh up the vertical sidewall of the pan and the lip to spill out, Rigterink said.

Designed with a low center of gravity, there are 30 inches between the water level and the suspension point. Rigterink said this allows the waterer to sway gently without spilling. The waterer's round shape is designed to prevent bruises to the turkeys, he added.

There is sufficient space under the galvanized stool dust shield, according to Rigterink, for birds to drink without removing their heads from the waterer, again reducing spillage.

The waterer's construction is entirely non-corrosive. All parts in contact with water are either plastic, porcelain, or stainless steel. There are no painted parts and none are subject to damage in normal usage, Rigterink said.

Champions named at E-town sheep, Holstein show

By KENDACE BORRY

ELIZABETHTOWN — It was the dairy cows and sheep's turn to shine Thursday night as the Elizabethtown Fair continued its livestock judging.

Arlen Keener, won the grand championship in the Holstein division with his FFA project, a senior yearling. His heifer, sired by Round Oak Rag Apple Elevation, was won from his Elizabethtown FFA chapter. He plans to show her next week in the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy show.

Reserve champion in the Holstein show went to Deb Landis, 10, from Manheim R7. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Landis. This was her first year of competition.

Dairy judge was William Erickson, Elizabethtown High School's vocational ag teacher.

Deb Martin, East Earl, with her Suffolk ewe lamb, exhibited the best of show in the sheep competition. A Garden Spot High School student, she is the 15 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Martin. The lamb came from the home flock.

The grand champion market lamb was shown by Kirsten Horning, and owned by her brother Keith, who hovered near the show ring. A Suffolk wether weighing around 125 pounds, the lamb came from Greystone Manor Farm. This was the first time that the Hornings had been in the show ring.

The grand champion showman in the sheep competition was Barb Martin, 15, of East Earl R2. This her second year of competition and she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Martin.

Pa. Nat. horse show Oct. 13-20

HARRISBURG - Numerous firsts will highlight the 34th annual Pennsylvania National Horse Show. The show takes place Saturday, October 13 through Saturday, October 20 at the State Farm Show Arena, Harrisburg.

For example, on opening Saturday, the American Horse Shows Association Prix des States Competition will feature junior jumper riders from many parts of the United States. These young equestrians are to participate in team events, patterned after international horse shows, as well as individual competition.

In fact, individual competition on Sunday, October 14, will determine the AHSA's Junior Jumper Champion of the United States.

Also set for Sunday afternoon is the AHSA Hunter Seat Equitation Medal Class National Finals. Approximately 150 entries from 30 states are expected. To be eligible for this event, a rider must have qualified at shows throughout the year.

Another major activity and a show first is the Grand Prix de Penn National. As a climax to a week of jumping competition, the Grand Prix will feature some of the nation's top professional riders and 25 to 30 of the show's best horses. It is scheduled for October 20, the closing Saturday evening. The purse is valued at $10,000.

Perhaps the major attraction of this year's show, however, is the Royal Canadian Mounted Police "Musical Ride." This world-famous show troop consists of 32 riders in traditional calvary drill.

Other show events feature roadster ponies, in racing silks and pulling sulkies; 3-gaited and 5-gaited saddle horses, including many world champions; and, for the first time in approximately 15 years, hackney and harness show horses.

Ladies Barrel Racing on Tuesday night, appearances by the Valley Forge Military Academy Band on closing Saturday, and tack room tours are also planned.

One thousand horses and riders are expected at the show and over $60,000 in prize money and trophies will be awarded in the various categories.

"All in all, this year's Pennsylvania National Horse Show should be one of the best in its 34-year history," says Horse Show President James W. Hagar. "It's a colorful, exciting sports event, unlike most anything else you or your family might attend."

The Pennsylvania National Horse Show benefits the Harrisburg Kiwanis Youth Foundation, Inc.

Penn Ag Industries meet

Named best lady herdsmen at the York Fair was Brenda Wafter, standing with donor William Dietz.

Dave Wise was named the winner of the men's herdsmen division award. Bill Dietz, donor, is seen presenting the award.

PITTSBURGH - Pennsylvania Secretary of Commerce James Bodine told a group of agribusinessmen meeting here today at the Hyatt House that the Thornburgh administration has made a committment to improving the business climate in Pennsylvania.

"Before I leave office," Bodine said, "I want to see the unemployment rate in Pennsylvania no higher than the national average, and preferably lower."

The former president of Philadelphia's First Pennsylvania Bank told his listeners that the state unemployment level at the end of August stood at 7.3 percent, compared to a national rate of 6 percent. Bodine spoke at the 101st annual convention of PennAg Industires Association, a state-wide trade group whose members supply the state's farmers with goods and services. Some 300 people attended this year's convention, which began September 18.

Too many business leaders are wary of expanding or starting new businesses in Pennsylvania, according to Bodine. But, he said, their wariness is a holdover from the attitude of previous administrations.

To counter those dismal outlooks, Bodine said the Commerce Department is conducting a $250,000 advertising campaign aimed at promoting Pennsylvania as a good place for business. The department has also launched a $750,000 effort in support of the state's tourist industry.

Bodine was one of three cabinet officers to address the convention. Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell discussed the impact of recent fertilizer legislation, and outlined his department's efforts at promoting Pennsylvania farm products and preserving the state's remaining family farms.

Dr. Tom Larson, Secretary of Transportation and chief of the state's biggest department, with 14,500 employees and a $1.3 billion budget, talked about his plans for fixing up the state's crumbling roads and cleaning up the conditions within PennDOT which left it riddled with corruption before he arrived some eight months ago.

Transportation was one of the key topics of speakers at Wednesday afternoon's program, too. Edward Rastatter, who heads the U.S. Department of Transportation regulatory and legislative coordination division, outlined the Carter administration's current attempts to deregulate the trucking industry.

Arcane regulations, he charged, and a legal price-fixing mechanism have made the industry less efficient and less competitive than it should be.

Rodman Kober, vice-president of the Continental Grain Co., New York, talked about rail transport. The big shipper-small shipper conflict of the past ten years has been mostly a myth, Kober said, because all shippers have been paying too dearly for poor rail service.

Farm lending was covered in a presentation by John Biechler, president of Commonwealth National Bank, Harrisburg. Commonwealth, the biggest farm lender in the state, is the 27th largest ag bank in the nation.

Pennsylvania agriculture is one of the state's biggest consumers of energy, according to another Thursday speaker, Linda P. Gallagher, executive director of the Alliance to Conserve Energy, Washington, D.C.

The Alliance, organized and funded by a number of major political and corporate figures, was set up two years ago to probe the country's energy needs.

Triplets at Leader Guernsey Farm

NEW FREEDOM - Twins in dairy cattle are generally greeted with mixed emotions, since they frequently cause problems in the birthing mother and triplets are almost unwelcome, causing breeding problems and frequently sterility in the heifer calves.

Not so for a threesome born on Sunday, September 9, at the Leader Guernsey Farms, New Freedom, in southern York County. Farm manager George Rohrbaugh and herdsman Jerry Krone had suspected that six-year-old Leaders L Dari Lassie was carrying a multiple-birth set of calves. Lassie had calved with twins when she first freshened as a heifer.

But when three, full-sized bouncing baby Guernsey heifers arrived, it came as quite a surprise. In several decades of dairying, Leader Farms had raised no triplets, and to be blessed with a trio of registered females brought considerable rejoicing.

September 9 was a big day for Leaders L Dairy Lassie, mother par excellence after delivering not one - but three - heifer calves. With the brood of calves is Darryl Rohrbaugh, left, and Jesse Basinger, while herdsman Jerry Krone congratulates the proud registered Guernsey mama for her one in a million chance feat.

Lassie is the daughter of one of the farm's own sires, Leaders Dairimost. Sire of the triplets is Eber-Lea Farms Winston.

The heifers bring to five the number of female offspring that Lassie now has in the Leader herd. She tests at a 5.3 percent fat level and made 650 pounds of fat during her last lactation.

Krone reports that the cow experienced no problems in delivery and the calves were up in under two hours time. The triplets, he says, will be named Lucy, Lucinda, and Lucille.

Competitive salaries released

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — The average annual pay for a Maryland worker in 1977 was $11,318. This compares with the national annual average pay of $11,425. Neighboring states reported annual average pay of Delaware — $12,120, Pennsylvania — $11,591, Virginia — $10,626 and West Virginia — $11,730. The District of Columbia reported the record highest average pay in the nation — with $15,132 per year.

These figures were computed by dividing the total annual payroll by the average monthly employment figures for states, and excluding most farm workers, the armed forces, railroad workers, some states and most local government employees. The figures, taken from reports of workers covered by state and federal unemployment programs, included an average of 73.2 million employees with a payroll of $836.7 billion covered by unemployment insurance.

These figures, while not reflecting the agricultural wage costs, do provide comparisons of competing wages in surrounding areas. The average pay information is based on "place of work" rather than "place of residence" since most data is from employer reports.

Based on a 52 week year with a 40 hour work week, the reported hourly rate for Maryland workers would be $5.44 per hour. Using the same relative figures for the District of Columbia, the average hourly wage would be $7.27. This is the competition from nonfarm wage rates that farmers in many areas must face in seeking farm workers.

Can you afford to pass up as much as $7500 extra in tax deductions this year?

If you're self-employed, and don't have a Keogh retirement plan, you're missing a tax deduction of up to 15% of your income ($7500 maximum).

Can you afford to pay those extra taxes? Can you afford not to use pre-tax dollars to save for your retirement years? (You pay no taxes on contributions or earnings until money is withdrawn at retirement — when you're almost sure to benefit from higher exemptions and a lower tax bracket.)

An IDS Representative can show you how to take advantage of this highly rewarding deduction for this calendar year. But you must act before December 31, so find out more today.

I cannot afford to pass up such a valuable tax deduction. Please see that I receive more information describing tax-deferred Keogh plans for the self-employed. Absolutely free and at no obligation of course.

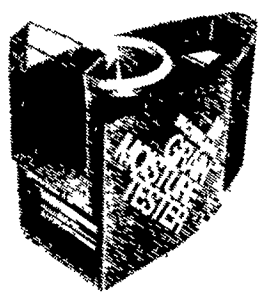
By DICKEY-John

THE PERFECT PORTABLE



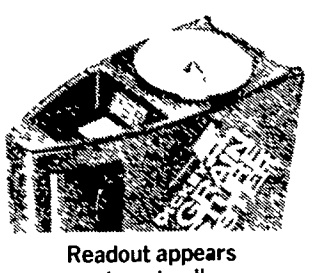
NEW large readout — it's a bigger liquid crystal display, easier to read than ever, even in bright sunlight.

NEW built-in dust cover — it protects the cell when you're not using the tester — flips up and slides conveniently out of the way when you're ready to test your grain.

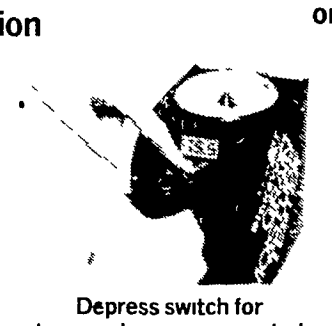
NEW redesigned temperature compensation switch. It's a sealed pressure-sensitive switch. It just takes a light touch to activate, and there are no cracks to collect dust or moisture.

Simple Three-Step Operation

Pour grain sample slowly into testing chamber



Readout appears automatically



Depress switch for temperature-compensated readout

Busie Maziya — enjoying her stay in America

By SALLY BAIR
Staff Writer

For Busie Maziya, 32, each day is a learning experience made interesting by working along side her host family and participating in their lives.

She finds it surprising to know that men help to cook and care for children and she is curious as to how there can be just one president for this vast country with its different states and different landscapes. She is pleased to find the people friendly and is not surprised by the food in this country.

Busie is a home economist from Swaziland who is spending four months in the United States as a participant in the International 4-H Youth Exchange program. After a brief stay in Washington, D.C., she stayed with host families in Adams County for 20 days and now is in the middle of a three-week stay in Lancaster County.

An intelligent young woman, Busie is anxious to learn all she can about the United States and its customs. She says, "A program like this is helpful because you see what the other part of the world does when it talks of agriculture. You see their way of life and their culture."

She says she helps her host families in their work during her stay. "I don't get bored or tired. It is their way of life and I come to enjoy it."

Speaking excellent English, Busie has had no language barrier problems since she arrived, although she said it was tiring at first to use a new language all the time. In Lancaster County, she is visiting with Eugene and Maureen Kraybill, 1925 Horseshoe Road, and is having the delightful experience of being able to speak her native siSwati again. Maureen is from Swaziland and Eugene spent three years there as a teacher. Busie says they speak a combination of the two languages, and adds, obviously with affection, "This is my home." The Kraybill's have two sons, Jeremy, 3, and John, almost 2.

While Busie says she is not homesick, she adds, "I am missing everyone from home." She said it takes nearly 10 days for letters to make the trip.

In the conversation it is revealed that if she had stayed in Swaziland she would be planning for a marriage in December. However, the government selected her to come to this country, so she says the marriage will take place later, probably six months after her return to allow the necessary time to prepare for it in the traditional way.

While it becomes evident that two ways of life — "traditional" and "western" — are co-existing in Swaziland, Busie says most people combine some of each, which is what she plans to do.

There are advantages in the traditional marriage over the "western" marriage, according to Busie. In the traditional marriage, a wife maintains some rights even if the marriage fails. In a western marriage, divorce is more common and leaves the woman without any rights. Busie added that while polygamy is not encouraged, it does exist in Swaziland, with those involved living amicably.

After Busie marries, she will continue with her career, and, most probably, will continue to live separately from her husband. While this sounds surprising, Busie explains that they each have accommodations at their respective jobs with the government, and it may take several years before they can be assigned a position together.

Busie Maziya works in the kitchen of the home of her host parents, Eugene and Maureen Kraybill. She enjoys being one of the family and helping with the family's chores.

Busie explains that in a traditional marriage, the bride and groom visit the groom's family the day after the ceremony and live there for one week. During this time the bride takes over the kitchen and prepares the meals. She points out that it is not so frightening to the new bride because they are prepared for it and may have the help of several members of the bride's family to carry out the duties.

As a firm example of opportunities for women in Swaziland, Busie says women's liberation is not a problem. "There are enough education chances whether you are a man or a girl." Busie explained that there are scholarships available for university study if certain exams are passed satisfactorily. She said that once finished with higher education, there is a very good possibility for graduates to be employed by the government as a civil servant. "Over 90 per cent are employed by the government," she said of students.

She accepts her success in school matter-of-factly, explaining that she passed the necessary exams, was interviewed by the scholarship selection committee and was awarded a scholarship. At that point, she applied for admission to the University. "My family was glad. We are from the rural areas, and it was pleasing for them to see my proceeding in college." She pointed out that she has seven sisters and three brothers and said several others have completed higher education.

After graduation, Busie was employed as a civil servant and was assigned to a farmer training center, about 100 miles from her home. At the center she is given living accommodations.

Busie said her primary responsibility is in the area of nutrition, home improvements, cooking and handicrafts. In addition to teaching classes for groups of women, Busie said she makes home visits "to see whether what I teach is implemented."

She said, she thoroughly enjoys her work, especially when she has the opportunity to work with older women. As she works with them, she said, she enjoys hearing them talk of history and the way things were.

"Nutrition," Busie says, "is not much of a problem. We just had a survey done among the clinics to see how many cases of malnutrition they were seeing, and it was not high. What helps us is that we have a lot of wild food — vegetables and fruit. We have guava which is very high in vitamin C and A and when children go out to play they can find these anywhere. We don't have malnutrition."

An end of the Summer gardening chore is picking the last of the tomatoes for harvest. Busie joins in the family labor at the home of her hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kraybill.

Homestead Notes

As a home economist at the training center, part of Busie's responsibility is working with their 4-S clubs, the equivalent of the 4-H clubs in this country. Ages for 4-S are from 9-21, and they meet once a week, year-round for such projects as gardening, fish ponds and handicrafts. She teaches many of the handicrafts which feature the traditional crafts of fibrework and grasswork, along with crocheting, tatting, machine and hand sewing, woodcarving and baking and cooking.

Busie says there are two 4-S agents in the country so the work is carried out mainly by the home economics and with field officers.

Busie notes that her handicrafts are her hobbies, and she especially enjoys crocheting things like doilies and tablecloths. She says she does not do much sewing for herself because clothing is not expensive in Swaziland and she would rather spend her time in other ways.

Clothing here, according to Busie, is "very expensive." But she adds that she feels the currency difference explains some of the high cost of food and clothing. Learning U.S. money was a challenge. "At first I had difficulty with money, but now I am used to it," she declares.

While Busie had worked with Americans at the training center and knew a lot about this country, there were some surprises for her as she lives here. She said, "Here the men help with dishes and cook — at home they don't. At home there is always cooking and cleaning for a woman to do, and she sometimes must work in the fields. Women mostly stay at home with the children."

While she said that families are close and men take an interest in the rearing of children, they do not share in the tasks of caring for children, such as bathing them or feeding them.

When asked about the potential for conflict in a changing culture, Busie said, "Some have a hard time." She said there is a new agriculture industry of growing fish in ponds for consumption. "Some don't like it. They are used to eating fish in tins, and fresh fish is a problem."

She also spoke of efforts in home improvements to bring toilets indoors where there are presently field latrines. She said some don't want to change their old habits, but are accepting it now. "I think changes are good, especially when it concerns the health of the individual."

Busie noted that while food in this country is different from the traditional food in Swaziland, it is not unfamiliar to her. "In domestic science, what you call home economics, we prepared English foods."

She said broccoli is new to her, adding, "You consume more lettuce." Her favorite dessert in this country is that old standby, fruit pies. She enjoys all kinds, she said.

She pointed out that one of the mainstays of the diet in Swaziland is "mealy porridge," made from corn meal. Corn plays an important part in the diet, and some must be imported from South Africa to meet the demand. Busie explained that it is necessary to import the extra "maize" because "it is difficult to change someone from old to new farming methods which produce high yields."

A lot of vegetables are included in the diet, including a dish made from pumpkin leaves, using the most tender new leaves and tiny pumpkins, with peanut butter added. She prepared it for the Kraybills, and has been cooking some other native dishes for them. A vegetable called "imbuya" is common in Swaziland. Busie says it is similar to pigweed in this country.

Citrus is plentiful in Swaziland, and is one of the primary agricultural exports along with sugar cane and rice. Forestry is another large exporting enterprise in that country.

Busie says that beef is the most popular meat. "We eat that more than any other. Every farmer has a cow, and when he kills one they dry the meat and have a lot of beef," she said. Beef is also exported. Fruits and vegetables are preserved by drying, and some is preserved by canning.

Some areas of the country depend on "irrigation schemes" to provide enough moisture for agricultural products. In these areas, Busie explained that the government will give farmers plots of a certain number of acres to care for. In this case, most of the farmers live together in a village with the land surrounding it. She said agriculture is intensive.

According to Busie, the government is involved in importing animals for breeding to upgrade the native stock. Artificial insemination has just been introducted she said. The animals, both black and red, are used for the production of both meat and milk.

While in Lancaster County, Busie is planning to attend some of the classes being offered at the Penn State Extension Service office and is going to visit a clinic in Ephrata with one of the nutrition aides from the Expanded Foods and Nutrition Education Program.

In Adams County she visited a poultry operation and apple processing plant.

From here she will travel for a brief stay in South Dakota, where she will meet with the other IFYE from Swaziland, and then will travel to Nebraska to live with host families there.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

How many of us become enamored with "things". We try to acquire more and more. For one person it may be dishes, another clocks, or another money. Whatever this particular item is, it becomes all important to possess more and more. It is difficult to use common sense.

Surely in the back of one's mind, is the fact that someday we will leave it all behind us. The tighter we hold on, the more we will lose. Yet we go on, day by day, trying to gain more. Does this come under the category of self-preservation?

Young people have so many desires and so many wants. They just can't seem to be satisfied. More clothes, more furniture, more appliances, etc. But then there comes a time when they finally have most of the "things" they'd always wanted. By the time a couple has been married 25 or 50 years and they decide to celebrate with friends, often a note is put on the invitation saying, "Please bring no presents, your presence is enough." Of course, often this request is not honored.

I remember helping an elderly lady empty her house in preparation for moving to a retirement community. In the attic, in a large walk-in closet, were shelves containing boxes and boxes of gifts which had been received 10 years previously at just such a celebration. There were lovely blankets, boxes of sterling and glassware, linens and decorations, all untouched in the intervening years. These are the things a young couple needs but they are a burden to an older one. Still, we try to accumulate, unable to realize that one day it will no longer be ours.

Ladies Have You Heard?

WHAT TO DO ABOUT FABRIC FLAWS

Flaws and soiled streaks occur in fabrics. If you notice them before you cut out a garment, you may be able to cut around them. But it is frustrating to discover a serious flaw after cutting.

Government specifications allow five flaws in every 50 yeards of goods. There is no restriction on the size of flaws. The retailer can't inspect every piece of fabric which comes into his store. If you don't inspect before you buy or cut, you may discover flaws when you start to cut.

If the fabric was sold as first quality and you find a major flaw after cutting, take the fabric back to the store. Most retail stores are reasonable in making adjustments if you have a legitimate complaint. But you will have to stand any loss for your time and labor since you could have spotted the damage before you put any work on the garment.

If you bought the fabric as a remnant or at a discount shop, the lower price may be due to some damage in the material. Inspect the fabric before buying because you can't expect to return it. Keep in mind, however, that you can get excellent buys by buying additional yardage and eliminating the damaged fabric as you cut.

If you find you have a soiled crease where the fabric was folded, it may or may not be serious, depending on the fabric. On a washable fabric, the soil will probably come out in laundering. Silks and woolens usually are folded with the right side inside so soiling should be on the wrong side of the fabric.

On nonwashable fabric, a touch-up with spot remover may do the trick if you work with care. Or better yet, refold the fabric to eliminate the center crease if you can. Even if the crease is not soiled, the pressed line may be almost impossible to remove.

Remember that some of the responsibility for a good buy rests with you, the consumer. If you think you have a legitimate complaint, take the problem to the store manager.

RESTORATION VS. REFINISHING

The purist approach to the care and feeding of a fine antique is to clean it gently and leave it alone. The extreme is to sand it down to the bare material, fill in all holes and cracks and have an almost new piece. The first is the most basic restoration and the second is the most complete refinishing.

The financial value of an antique or collectible is in direct proportion to its original condition.

Generally, it is best to retain the original finish of any wooden or metal object, painted or not. Simple cleaning with a soft cloth moistened with lemon oil and wiping with a clean cloth is best for furniture, tools, and painted items in good condition. Nicks, scratches and dents are a sign of its age and most efforts to eliminate these will alter, if not destroy its resale value. Repairing or replacing a damaged part is still considered restoration, but it, too, alters the value.

A Shaker rocker which shows some signs of wear but the original finish intact will be worth far more than the mint condition Shaker rocker with one or two parts replaced. A copper tea kettle tarnished with age is worth more than the same kettle buffed and sprayed to prevent tarnish. To a real antique buff, character is part of the intrinsic value of a piece. Above all, do not paint iron antiques with flat black spray paint. Iron can be kept gleaming and rust free by applying a mixture of beeswax and turpentine and the buffing. Other metals such as copper, brass, pewter and precious metals should be cleaned with appropriate cleaners.

On being a farm wife

—And other hazards

JOYCE BUPP

I like fair season.

But I like it even better, after several days of milking, washing, bedding, and running back and forth between two places, to move everything back home again.

Fact is, for awhile, this year, it looked as though we might not make it there at all.

Showstring entry day dawned sunny, brisk and bright - but with a cloud of concern hanging over the barn, in the form of the haunting spectre of a milk inspector we suspected.

Earlier, during the night, a heifer had aborted a seven-month calf. And another cow had also freshened out, with a dead bull calf.

A clump of feed managed to wedge itself into a bottom silo unloader and refused to budge until we had whispered sweet nothings into its nuts and bolts with a wrench for a full half-hour.

So, we were already running two hours late when the barn phone rang. It was the wife of our cows manager and assistant milker, carrying out a threat she had predicted many months earlier: she was indeed picking this time to depart for the hospital's maternity ward.

Hours later, and still behind schedule, nine head of cattle had been trucked to York, bathed from their inch of grit and grime, milked and bedded in the show barn. The evening milking and feeding at home still had to be done.

And we'd added a new baby boy to our farm family, just hours old.

I threw a quick supper on the table as the farmer collapsed into a chair, resting his head on his hands.

"Tell me again," he muttered, "how much fun we're having showing cattle at the fair."

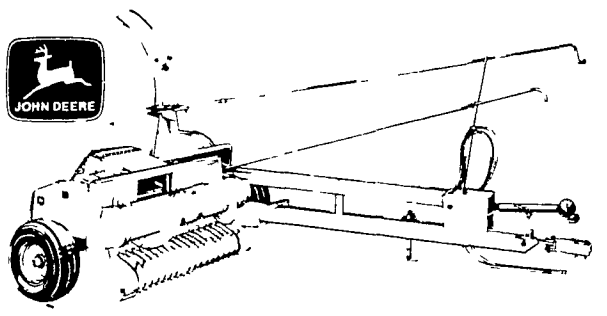
The new 3940 Powr-Mizer™ Forage Harvester . . . new cutterhead, new controls, more capacity

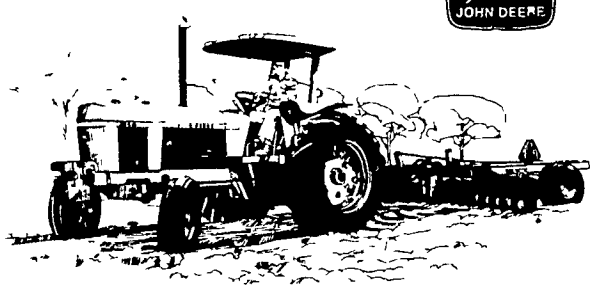


Now there's a forage harvester that squeezes extra work out of your tractor's horsepower The new 3940 from John Deere. The 3940's power-efficient design begins with our new Dura-Drum™ cutterhead ... uneven forage doesn't stand a chance against its 36 segmented cutter knives. And if a knife gets damaged, you'll find it's easy and inexpensive to replace one of the short, segmented blades.

New easy-adjust controls help you keep running at peak performance. It only takes one wrench and less than two minutes to set the shear bar at the proper clearance. No bending. No mess. No shields to remove. It's so easy, you'll adjust it every time you sharpen the knives.

All these power-efficient features of the 3940 add up to let you harvest more forage with your present tractor. Come on in and let us show you how the 3940 can squeeze more capacity out of your 80- to 130-hp tractor

John Deere 80-hp 2840



Our lowest-priced big tractor, and it's fully equipped

Every cycle in farming produces a tractor that's made for the times. The 2840 is that tractor; it's the 4020 of the late '70s. The 2840, at its rock-bottom base price, is equipped to handle just about any field or farmstead tool. With a high-torque, 6-cylinder diesel engine. A 12-speed hydraulic Hi-Lo shift transmission. A draft-sensing 3-point hitch. Drawbar. Independent 540/1000 rpm PTO. Two double-action cylinder outlets. With power steering, hydraulic disk brakes, differential lock. All standard.

You can buy almost all these features on other tractors — as extra-cost options, generally. But even when you pay for them all, you won't have a 2840. Dependable. Durable. With trade-in value that holds on ... and up.

Plus the strongest warranty in the business Confidential financing if you want it. And the durability of our John Deere dealership for your parts and service backup. The 2840: powered, equipped, and priced for the times.

Recycle old sewing patterns

NEWARK—If you're like many home sewers, you have an overcrowded collection of patterns, yet you go out and buy a new one every time you make another garment. You can save sewing money by putting your old patterns back into action.

Although your pattern library may contain some patterns that are up-to-date, many are probably out of style or in various stages of disrepair. To get the most from your investment, sort through your patterns and assess what you have. As you look at each pattern illustration and guide sheet, ask yourself the following questions:

Is the style still in fashion? * Is the skirt length appropriate? * Is the neckline or collar becoming? * Do such design details as pockets, buttons and buttonholes, belt and trimmings look up-to-date?

Next, browse through some fashion magazines, pattern books, and fashionable stores to become aware of current pattern styles and what is selling in ready-to-wear. Save patterns that are still fashionable and suitable to your way of life. Also save patterns that have style details or elements that appeal to you and might be updated.

For example, a dress pattern may have a particularly interesting and flattering skirt, but the bodice and sleeves may be out-of-date. Even if the skirt pattern of the dress needs lengthening or shortening, it could be worth saving, either to use to make a separate skirt or to combine with a different bodice.

Set aside patterns that will be of no further use to you. These are the ones that are no longer the correct size, are not flattering or appealing to you, or are hopelessly out-of-date. You can exchange patterns you no longer want with friends, set up a pattern exchange with a local community group, or sell or donate them to a garage or rummage sale. Some may not be worth saving.

Make sure the patterns you decide to keep are in good repair. Much-used and worn patterns can be backed with lightweight, non-woven press-on interfacing fabric; or the pattern pieces can be traced onto tissue paper or one of the pattern duplicating materials now commercially available.

Patterns often seem too bulky to fit back into the pattern envelope after use. A suggestion is to put the pattern into a clear plastic bag, then cutting the envelope apart and taping the illustration to the bag. The top of the bag can be secured with paper clips.

Finally, set up a pattern filing system. A sturdy cardboard container or shoe box works well. Patterns can then be arranged according to type for each family member, or whatever system works best for you.

You can get the course to use as a guide to your fall and holiday entertaining by sending $5.50 plus 25 cents postage to Guides For Entertaining, Box 5000, University Park, PA 16802. Make check payable to Penn State.

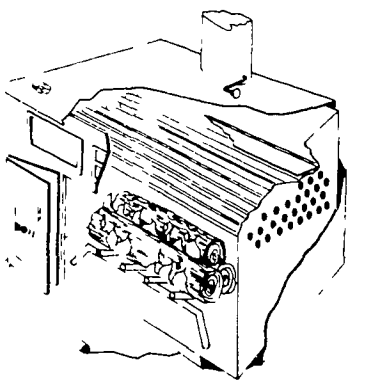
The smart move in wood heat? It's got to be Hydro-Heater.

There are many good stoves around Most are great space heaters But sometimes it's either freeze or fry

The Hydro-Heater is different It heats your whole house, top to bottom, corner to corner with even, cozy warmth

Since appearances can be deceiving a look inside will show you what makes the Hydro-Heater special A sealed water jacket surrounds the fire, and in the tubing section across the top water passes above the fire six times gathering heat that is normally lost up the chimney



Because water is a natural heat conductor you have total control of the heat produced by your fuel wood just like with a furnace Owners have saved up to 90% on fuel bills And virtually every Hydro-Heater has paid for itself within two years You can see why owners of ordinary wood stoves have stepped up to a Hydro-Heater

There is a Hydro-Heater system for homes with existing hot water forced air or electric heat

With winter approaching, it's time for you to make the smart move to wood heat with a Hydro-Heater

EXPANDED METAL HAS MANY ADVANTAGES OVER OTHER FLOORING SYSTEMS. FOR EXAMPLE:

- Foot problems are reduced, compared with solid concrete or concrete slat flooring
- Expanded metal "self-cleans" and stays dry better than any other flooring we've evaluated. As a result, bacteria buildup is minimized, which improves conception rates and overall herd health.
- Boars and sows have better footing during breeding, compared with breeding on grooved concrete floors

Kendy's Kollumn

by Kendace Borry

There's something a little bit different about that new puppy that hangs around home.

I just think that something in his head may have been put together slightly different.

He has this problem. It has to do with eating.

Now most of my friends can tell me terrible tales for hours about how their puppies wouldn't eat anything. One girl's puppy grew up on cottage cheese--that was the only thing that his poor little delicate tummy could keep down.

And there was the little cocker spaniel that just refused to eat unless he could lap the food out of his master's hand. For six months, that dog was hand fed.

But then my one buddy proceeded to tell me that her dog only eats gourmet dog food--and only the best She has to shop at special stores just to keep her dog happy.

We don't have such problems. Shiloh, that puppy that is growing by leaps and bounds, is, I'm sorry to say, a chow-hound.

He eats anything. And I mean anything. Dog food, cat food, horse feed, sheep feed, it's all the same to him. You set a scoop of feed down out in the barn, when you go to pick it up, it will be empty.

If you're eating a snack, and he's around, you can be sure he's begging for a handout. And he usually talks himself into getting one.

But the other night topped them all. We had some leftover tomato slices from supper and just on impulse we took them out and put them in the dog dish

One minute later the tomatoes were gone.

And Shiloh was sitting there with a content look on his face.

I must be raising him wrong. I just hope nobody tells him that puppies are supposed to be fussy eaters. I like it just fine the way things are.

Ropp claims increased protein exports

LEROY, Ill. - Skyrocketing world population and the need for protein will magnify the role of Illinois agriculture in international trade, according to Rep. Gordon L. Ropp.

Ropp, an Illinois State Representative for the 44th District and former Illinois Director of Agriculture, addressed business and agricultural leaders gathered to tour a just-completed $1 million soybean seed conditioning facility near LeRoy.

The plant conditions seed for Illinois and Wisconsin farmers served by the Peterson Soybean Seed Division of Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc

Pointing to other sources of increased export trade, Ropp said he expects added sales of both corn and soybeans to the Soviet Union.

"The Soviet Union is putting more stress on livestock production. Because weather conditions are erratic there, the Soviets won't be able to produce enough for livestock feed."

"This means increasing reliance on major producers such as the Illinois farmer for soybean and corn."

In addition to his activities in state government, Ropp operates a 500 acre farm in partnership with his father and brother near Normal, Illinois.

Exchange student helps with milking Shorthorns

YORK - A love for the Milking Shorthorn dairy cattle breed has made Austrialian exchange student Durell Hammond feel right at home on the Sam Yoder farm at Shoemakersville, Berks County.

Yoder has followed the dairy cattle show circuit for several years and was at last week's York Fair with several head. Hammond, who's been with the Yoder's for eight months, helped groom the show string and parade them for the judge.

Hammond, 18, is from a 80-head Illawarra Shorthorn family dairying operation. He plans upon returning to Australia to go full time into dairying, with about three hundred acres of cropground for an 80-head herd. Cattle back home, he says, are pastured year round, and supplemented with grass hay and silage. No corn is grown and the hay mixture is mostly of a rye-clover blend.

In addition to the York show, Hammond's travels with the Yoder cattle will include the Allentown Fair, the Harrisburg All-American dairy show, and an upcoming sale in Ohio. He's also had the chance to look at some mid-west registered Milking Shorthorns during a stop at Iowa State University.

The Yoder family took the championship at the York Fair's breed show, with James Young of Newville taking the reserve grand placing. Yoder and Young dualed throughout the show for the top spots, each taking several blues in the junior and senior divisions.

Nedar Yoder's aged Milking Shorthorn won the top honors in the York Fair's breed category. At the halter of the winner is the Yoder's guest Austrialian exchange student, Durell Hammond.

Pesticide application is topic of symposium

PHILADELPHIA — Mixing, application, and potential regulatory aspects of spray tank combinations of pesticides, both alone and with liquid fertilizer, moves to center stage for the October 16 symposium on pesticide applications. The symposium program is scheduled at the McCormick Inn, Chicago, IL.

The event is sponsored by Subcommittee E35.22 on Pesticide Formulation and Application Systems, a branch of Committee E-35 on Pesticides of the American Society for Testing and Materials (ASTM). Selected speakers from industry, academia, and government will discuss the methods used to prepare, test, apply, and monitor these applications.

A special technical publication is anticipated on the symposium proceedings by ASTM. A nonprofit organization, ASTM is a leader in the development of voluntary consensus standards for materials, products, systems and services.

Beginning at 10 a.m., the one-day program will present a balanced view of the topic and a half-hour discussion session on pesticide applications from 3:30 to 4 p.m. The discussion session will establish areas of interest for future programs.

Information on speakers and other arrangements is available from Symposium Chairman David Lindsay, Mobil Chemical, P.O. Box 240, Edison, NJ 08817 (201/321-6379); or Don Tobias, ASTM Standards Development Division, 1916 Race St., Philadelphia, PA 19103 (215/299-5546). Attendance of the symposium is free and open to any interested persons.

York Fair names five dairy breed winners

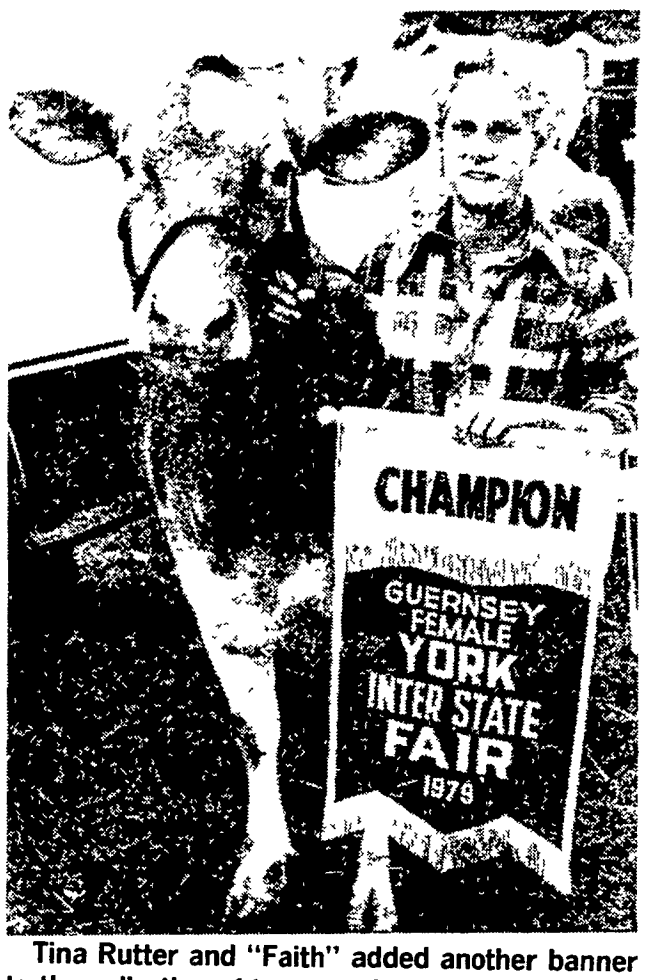
By JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

YORK—There were few surprises when the judging of the open class colored dairy breed was wrapped up Thursday afternoon of the the York Fair with champion banners going to several long-time winners.

One new Ayrshire exhibitor 12-year-old Barry Lehman of York R11, walked off with the purple banner in that breed category with his two-year-old recently freshened heifer.

George Bassler of Frederick, Maryland, wound up with a pocketful of ribbons and rosettes as his Sand Rock Brown Swiss dominated their division, taking every one of the top awards.

Mildred Seeds and Bruce Heller of Downington traded off for the top spots in the Jersey show, with Seeds taking the championship and the reserve going to Heller. Also placing in the calf classes were 4-H'ers Patrick Anderson, Hanover, Kathy Rauhauser, Dover, and Suzy Queitzsch, New Freedom, while Mike Welsh of East Berlin won the dry three-and -four year cow class.



Tina Rutter and "Faith" added another banner to the collection of top awards they've assembled this year with the York Fair's award of open class champion Guernsey.

Two of York County's top Guernsey herds battled for the champion banner in their breed show, with the top spot going to a repeat winner from the 4-H show, Tina Rutter. Honeycrest Farm, owned by the Ellsworth Lehman family of York R11, took the reserve championship.

Cousins Chad Rutter and Tina Rutter earned the junior division prizes, with Chad's intermediate calf named the junior champion and Tina's senior calf taking the reserve spot.

A partial list of the Guernsey results follows:

All the Jersey honors went to Mildred Seeds of Downingtown. The senior and grand champion was this two-year-old, "Merry Jingo of Top-O-Hill".

"Five years ago, when we chose the diesel engines to power our 750-acre irrigation system, fuel economy was what we were looking for and we looked at a lot of engines The Deutz diesel was by far the best on that score Other Deutz users told us they had cut their fuel bill by about 25 percent—we've done better than that They also said the separate air-cooled cylinders on a Deutz are very easy to service I couldn't tell you about that—we've never had to repair one"—Bill Bontrager, Operations Manager Estrella River Properties, Ltd , Paso Robles, Ca

Deutz engines consume less fuel simply because their advanced design makes them more efficient They run at higher head temperatures and make better use of the fuel They are more dependable, longer-running because of their solid quality and superior cooling system About half the causes of downtime in liquid-cooled engines are attributable to breakdowns in the cooling system In air-cooled Deutz diesels, there can be no freeze-ups or boil-overs, no broken water hoses, no water-pump failures, no cavitation, none of the problems liquid-cooled engines are heir to

Throughout the world, wherever the going is toughest, Deutz air-cooled diesels are going strong

4-H flower grower champion wins again

TIMONIUM, Md. - For the fourth consecutive year, Lee Deboard, 17, of White Hall, Md., had the champion 4-H flower garden display at the Maryland State Fair in Timonium.

Deboard's 1979 winner was titled "Flowers and Herbs—A Garden That's Pleasing to Sight and Taste." It included instructions for drying and storing home-grown herbs.

His winning entry last year included a step-by-step procedure for making an aromatic potpourri from flower petals.

Entries in the flowers and flower garden sections of the 4-H arts and science division at the state fair were down markedly from previous years.

The same was true of the 4-H vegetable varieties and vegetable garden sections, with no entries whatsoever in the latter category. Part of the blame for the dearth of flower garden and vegetable garden displays was attributed to rainy weather during state fair week.

In addition, less-than-ideal growing weather earlier in the Summer had delayed maturation and adversely affected quality of both flowers and vegetables so that they were not at their prime for state fair week, noted Dr. Russell J. Bagle, Extension horticulture agent in Baltimore county, who judged the flower show.

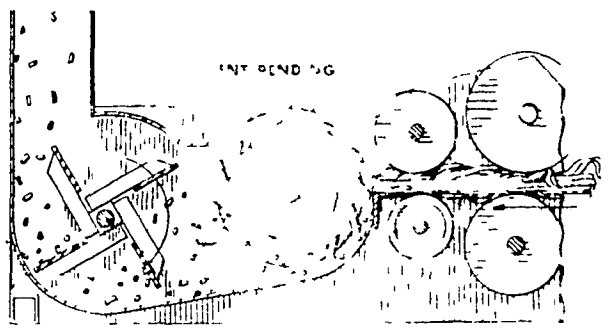
FORAGE HARVESTER

A Breakthrough In Forage Cutting — Throwing System

MODEL 750 IN STOCK

ITS SECOND TO NONE CUTTING—THROWING SYSTEM AND ITS EXCLUSIVE FEATURES MAKE IT THE FIRST!



YES! THIS IS THE MOST PERFECTED CUTTING THROWING SYSTEM EVER SEEN. Here is the definitive solution to the problems which have always existed in this regard. Compact, the forage is brought between the agressive rollers of the 750 forage harvester and is neatly cut by the exclusive cylinder head equipped with 8 strong curved knives, remains in suspension then almost at the same time, is rapidly picked up by the fan, which projects it outside in a continuous and synchronized movement. Furthermore, the forage is recut by a second shear bar located between the cutter-head and the fan, thus providing an unexcelled degree of fine and clean cut in any operating conditions. Already in the process of acceleration due to the centrifugal force supplied by the cutter-head the forage remains in suspension as same is running at a higher speed. The forage is then taken away by the fan blades which rush it outside at an incredible speed. Thrown out in such a way, the material is projected behind the forage harvester, at distances which can reach up to 30 to 40 feet. With this advanced technology, forage boxes are filled at an increased speed. The combination of both the cutter-head speed and the fan speed, completes marvelously this new and revolutionary system, truly unique and exclusive at DION.

★ LARGE 117 P.S.I. THROAT providing a great feeding efficiency guaranteed by a perfected system of aggressive feeding rollers well balanced by strong springs.

★ FANTASTIC BUILT-IN GRINDER: giving back to the knives their original sharpening. Mounted on roller bearings, this system uses a standard emery stone.

★ CYLINDER AND FAN COVER: can be removed easily, giving access for knives grinding or any maintenance work.

★ SICKLE BARS OSCILLATING PITMAN: drives the sickle bars of all attachments and supplies 1 200 strokes per minute thus insuring the nicest cutting for any kinds of crops. Having a high carbon steel shaft, same is equipped with roller bearings assuring almost an indefinite life.

★ HEAVY-DUTY UNIVERSAL JOINTS transmit the tractor power to the cutter head by passing through a strong 90 degrees angle transmission box. In some exceptional cases, these joints are protected by safety bolts which will shear off if ever the cylinder is overloaded. Such rugged joints insure a constant efficiency to the cutter head, feeding rollers and fan.

★ CONTROL LEVERS: all control commands of the forage harvester are very easy to handle.

★ COMPLETE HYDRAULIC ELECTRIC CONTROL. of spout deflector and transmission.

★ ATTACHMENTS ARE CONNECTED BY AN HYDRAULIC CONTROL: therefore, they can be raised or lowered thus allowing an easy adjustment of all attachments. This system is very compact, smooth and efficient.

Livestock reporters guide futures to delivery

NEW YORK, N.Y. – Walk onto the trading floor of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange (CME), or the MidAmerican Commodity Exchange in Chicago, and you may think that you've walked into utter chaos. Shouting men, with outstretched arms and waving hands, are crowded onto the steps around several trading pits. Things are happening so fast that you wonder if anyone knows what is going on.

Surprisingly enough, they do. The waving hands mean something, and if you watch closely, you will notice that, the fingers and the direction of the palm communicate a message. As for the shouting – often it is used only to get someone's attention.

Who are all these people? They are traders, trading such commodities as slaughter cattle, slaughter hogs, and feeder cattle with the use of futures contracts. A futures contract is an agreement between a buyer and seller for the purchase or sale of a certain quantity and quality of a commodity for a specific price for delivery during a specified month.

CME initiated futures trading on live slaughter cattle in 1964, and later added contracts covering feeder cattle and slaughter hogs. MidAmerica began trading slaughter hogs and cattle in the 1970's. Since then, futures trading has become one of the dominating market forces in the livestock industry. In 1978, the total value of all livestock contracts traded was more than $150 billion.

In 1965, CME asked the U.S. Department of Agriculture for help in assuring that all contracts delivered meet the prescribed specifications. The Livestock Market News Branch, part of the department's Agricultural Marketing Service, has been responsible for grading the livestock which is delivered.

Because the amount of money involved in livestock futures trading is so great, it's important that highly qualified people be used to perform the grading services. Because of their background and training in livestock evaluation, USDA livestock market reporters furnish the service. This service is paid for by the Exchange and deducted from the receipts of the person in the short position.

Livestock market news chief James Ray says the market reporters have demonstrated their ability to do a highly acceptable job of appraising live animals for grade and other contract specifications.

Livestock are not marked with official USDA grades like those stamped on beef carcasses. But, it's necessary that the reporters be able to quickly and uniformly apply official grade standards for their daily reporting responsibilities and for settling futures contracts.

Livestock are delivered to one of 16 designated delivery points, and it is at these points that local livestock market reporters do the grading and evaluation. Delivery points are located in: Montgomery, Ala.; Greeley, Colo.; Joliet, National Stockyards, and Peoria, Il.; Sioux City, Iowa; Dodge City, and Wichita, Kan.; South St. Paul, Minn.; Kansas City, and St. Joseph, Mo.; Omaha, Neb.; Guymon, and Oklahoma City, Okla.; Amarillo, Tex.; and Billings, Mont.

Whenever the number of deliveries at a certain point is larger than the local staff can handle, additional reporters are brought in from other market news offices that have reporters available to help.

Grading and accepting livestock delivered to cattle futures contracts is not the only service livestock market reporters provide. Their primary task is to gather and disseminate daily market information.

Livestock market news provides accurate and unbiased reports describing current market conditions for livestock, meat, and wool. These reports cover supply, demand, prices, trends, movements, and other pertinent information affecting trade.

The CME rules provide for delivery of livestock traded, and livestock reporters play an important role in this activity. Grading of livestock, to make it meets specifications, requires an eye for livestock quality. It also ensures that those involved in the transaction get what they pay for.

SILO PRESS
NEW LOW-COST WAY TO SEAL AND STORE FEED STUFFS EFFECTIVELY

Nutritionists, cattlemen and dairymen agree sealed storage is the way to get the most from feedstuffs.

But, sealed silos are costly ... and immovable!

Now, you can seal and store silage and high moisture grains in low-cost plastic bags ... wherever you wish ... and retain maximum feed quality, quickly converted to more milk per cow or extra beef per pound of feed for faster, more profitable gains.

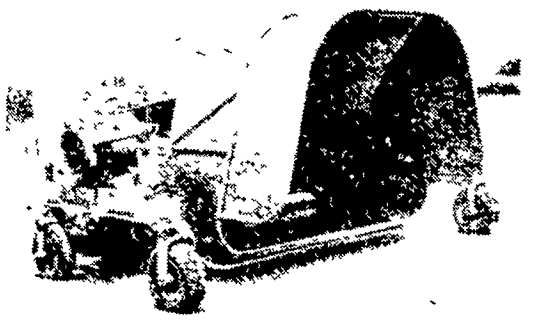
You also can reap an extra harvest in added benefits.

The Eberhardt Silopress has been used successfully in Western Europe for seven years, It's new in America...but catching on fast!

Compare this new concept with the system you're using now. Consider the benefits, advantages and flexibility. And also consider the cost.

Then, put a Silopress to work for you!

IT'S A WELL BUILT MACHINE!



Practical, durable and versatile, the Silopress is designed and constructed for hard, continuous use. It is easily maintained There are few moving parts. Lurbrication is convenient.

It can be transported easily from field to field or farm to farm, maneuvered into tight places.

The Silopress may be operated with a tractor as small as 50 horsepower.

Bags are 8 mil. thickness, 8 feet in diameter. They come in lengths from 80-100 feet. Capacity: Approximately 100 tons per bag depending on material stored. Bags are American-made, readily available.

- Extensive research proves the Silopress preserves feedstuffs with minimal nutrient loss
- Feedstuffs come out of storage highly palatable
- Feedstuffs capable of being ensiled, sealed and stored in plastic bags include corn, alfalfa, oats, barley, wheat, coastal Bermuda grass, legume forages, native grasses, ryegrass, milo, sorghum, brewers' spend grain, distillers' grains, fruit packing byproducts and cannery byproducts. High moisture grains also may be stored successfully. In some instances, the Silopress has been used to store beef and chicken waste. Aspen wood is being stored experimentally for use as a feedstuff
- Storage capacity is unlimited When extra storage is needed, another bag can be added. Each 80 to 100 ft plastic bag may contain 100 tons of silage on the average depending upon the moisture content and density of the feedstuff being handled. Bags are readily available.
- Highly mobile, the Silopress is equipped with transport wheels and converts quickly to tow position with an overall width to 7 ft., 8½ in The machine can be towed behind a tractor or pickup on the highway.
- With a Silopress, you can store your feedstuffs any place on your farm ... wherever it can be fed most conveniently Bags require no permanent foundations.
- Feedstuffs can be self-fed to cattle directly from the bag To many livestockmen, this feauture alone justifies use of the Silopress on their farms and ranches. Materials also may be removed with front end loader. The bag is filled in vertical layers, making unloading easier.
- For farmers wishing to store several different types of feedstuffs separately, the Silopress is ideal A separate bag can be used to store each type of feed
- With a Silopress, you can feed a number of different feedstuffs in whatever order you desire or in combination
- Farmers who are renting their land can enjoy the advantages of sealed storage with a Silopress without the high investment costs and landlord-tenant complexities of conventional silos.
- The Silopress is well adapted to custom farming operations, bringing the advantages of sealed storage to both small and large-scale farmers (In Europe, many Silopress units are owned by custom operators)
- With a Silopress, you can harvest feedstuffs almost irregardless of weather .. rainy days no exception. Little or no silage is lost during work stoppages in filling This system of storage will accept feedstuffs with wide variations in moisture content and still maintain feed quality

Silopress will accept material from side or rear unloading wagons and trucks... or front end loaders

Little fluctuation seen in corn market

DEKALB, Ill. — With a record corn crop of 7.1 billion bushels forecasted, one would expect corn producers to be bracing themselves for a sharp drop in prices. However, a Chicago economist says chances of such a drop occurring are limited.

"The possibility of a major price increase is now very limited due to the size of the crop. But the risk of a major price decline is also very limited because of small free stocks and government policies affecting the corn market," explains Rudolph P. Gallat, chief economist and director of research for Heinold Commodities, Inc., a subsidiary of DeKalb AgResearch, Inc.

"As of August 1st, the USDA export forecast was raised to 2.18 billion bushels and domestic feeding estimate to 4.25 billion bushels for the 1978-79 season. About three-fourths of the ending stock estimate of 1.17 billion bushels is presently under reserve or loan contracts, leaving very limited free stocks on September 30," Gallat says.

Gallat adds that despite a potential record corn crop, the estimated 1979-80 domestic use of 4.87 billion bushels and exports as high as 2.4 billion bushels would lower the corn carryover of 1.01 billion bushels on September 30, 1979 by 160 million bushels.

"While prices may rise enough to release reserves again during the coming season, this is not likely to occur until late in the 1979-80 marketing year if the current production estimate holds or is raised further," he says.

The economist says there is also only a very limited possibility of a feed grain set-aside in 1980. But he adds that a small set-aside may go into effect, should the 1979 corn harvest exceed 7.2 billion bushels.

"We could still have a reduced corn crop this year if an early freeze or frost were to affect a large part of the Corn Belt," Gallat says. "This year's crop is behind average development and could be vulnerable to an early frost."

Gallat explains that should a frost cut the 1979 crop to 6.67 billion bushels, and prospective exports hold at 2.4 billion bushels, the carryover on September 30, 1980 could fall below 700 million bushels, even with reduced feeding in the United States.

"The price potential would be explosive under such circumstances," he says, adding, "new seasonal peak prices would be established quickly to fully reflect the tight world feed grain balance."

Regarding the effect feed grain policies will have on corn prices, Gallat says the 1980 support price for corn will most likely be pushed into the $2.10 to $2.20 per bushel range.

"We believe that the minimum reserve release price will be $2.70 to $2.80 per bushel and the price at which loans are called will be $3.00 to $3.20 per bushel," he says. However, he adds that the big question is whether or not the higher reserve release prices will go into effect as soon as the decision to hike them is made, or only for the 1980 crop.

The current reserve release price is $2.50 per bushel. If the release price is increased and put into effect in September or October 1979, Gallat says it is unlikely the average farm price, currently about $2.40 per bushel, will fall much further below $2.50 per bushel.

"Barring any serious breakdown in transportation or loading at ports, corn prices in mid-August should be very near seasonal lows, especially in the futures market and in locations close to export facilities where old crop stocks are very low," Gallat concludes.

New 4-wheel tractors arrive

Binkley and Hurst Brothers, 133 Rothsville Station Road, Lititz, has received its first shipment of the new Case 90 Series four-wheel drive tractors. Area farm families are invited to stop by and check out the new models, according to Leonard Hurst.

"The tractors represent the latest step in the development of a new generation of tractors by J I Case Company," Hurst stated. "All three models – the 4490, 4690 and 4890 – are powered by turbocharged diesel engines, designed for high production farming," he said.

Other features of the new tractors that will interest farmers, include:

A 12-speed range power shift transmission that offers four separate speed ranges, with three power shifts in each range. The tractor operator does not have to stop the tractor when shifting within any of the speed ranges.

Solid state electronics that give added precision and control to the Case system of selective steering. Instead of bending in the middle, Case four-wheel drive tractors are steered by turning the front wheels or the rear wheels, or both front and rear wheels at the same time. The operator simply flicks a switch to select the steering mode best suited for the particular operation.

A new, closed center hydraulic system that allows the operator to select the exact flow rate required for the most efficient operator of any implement or accessory.

Non-metallic, non-rusting hoods that are unlatched by hand and lift forward to provide maximum access to the engine compartment for routine maintenance.

Cabs designed to give the operator maximum visibility to the front, sides and rear of the tractor. Cab noise in the 90 Series tractors has been reduced to a manufacturer's estimate of 78 dBa.

The tractors can be equipped with a number of options to meet individual owner needs and preferences. Included are a "President's Chair" and a telescoping steering wheel that lets the operator tailor his driving position to his liking.

Commodities included are avocados, citrus, tomatoes, macadamia nuts, poultry, dairy, flowers, assorted row crops, and the use of drip irrigation in field production.

Paramedic team wins calf dressing contest

By JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

YORK — York County 4-H dairy club members flocked into the dairy cattle arena Thursday evening of York Fair week for a night of fun and contests.

Growing more popular each year is the calf dressing competition, which drew several hundred spectators off the midway to watch teams of youngsters and reluctant calves costume up for the judges.

Winners of the junior division were Susan Eisenhart, Thomasville, and Mike Anderson, Hanover, who draped a Jersey calf in yards of red fabric as the fairytale Little Red Riding Hood.

Second was "Space Cow," by Jana Beth Fantom of Delta, and Mike Welsh of East Berlin. "Frosty the Snowman," garbed in a scarf and shaving cream, won a third place for David and Lesley King of Delta. Debby and Barry Lehman, York, wrapped their calf in aluminum foil as the robot "7 COW." And a bovine racehorse named "Thunderbolt" took fifth for Downa Doll Glenville and Mike Krebs of Jefferson.

The senior division was larger than ever, with the blue ribbon placing taken by Kathy Morrison and Jesse Rexroth of Windsor. Their first-aid heifer came complete with nurse, and ambulance wagon pulled by a rope-harnessed heifer.

Darryl Rohrbaugh, New Freedom, and David Krone, Glen Rock, dressed their heifer like a devil, complete with a "forked tail" for the second place. Third was Pat Anderson, Hanover, and Kelly Miller, Jefferson, in miscellaneous sports attire. Bonnie Wire, Spring Grove, and Joey Welsh, East Berlin, garbed their fourth place calf in yellow feathers and a large bill as "Big Bird," from the Sesame Street show.

Bridgette Boyer, York, and Patty Bupp, Seven Valleys, came in fifth with grass-skirted Hawaiian costumes, and Barb Kilgore, Airville, and Patty Greek, Delta, paraded as Ma and Pa Kettle and "Baby." Donna Godfrey of Glen Rock and Kathy Rauhauser of Dover garbed their entry as a beauty contestant and Tom Welsh, East Berlin, and Carole Mundis, York, entered a Little Red Riding Hood theme.

New to the Thursday evening events this year was a milking contest between teams representing the county's dairy clubs. First place went to Kathy Morrison and Brian Lehman of the White Rose club and Patty Greek and Peter King of the Milk and Money Club were second. Third was Roy Thompson and Angela Eyster of Central club and Darryl Rohrbaugh and Ann Miller of the Southwestern group were fourth.

Wrapping up the "fun and games night" was an ice-cream eating competition, organized by the county's dairy princess committee.

The event turned hilarious as contestant teams were seated across a table from each other, blindfolded, and given a dish of ice cream to feed their teammates. The winners after three run-offs were 4-H'ers Jon Miller of Seven Valleys and John Janney of Glenville. Judges never quite decided whether the winners had more ice cream in them — or on them.

Junior division winners of the York Fair's 4-H calf dressing were little Jersey Red Riding Hood, grandma Susan Eisenhart, and Mike Anderson, who saved the pair from the lurking wolf.

Kathy Morrison outfitted her calf as a four-footed first aid station, complete with patient, Jesse Rexroth. The pair took first place in the York Fair's senior division calf dressing competition. And that heifer really did pull the wagon, to the delight of several hundred assembled spectators.

Local floriculture team wins

MOUNT JOY - The Eastern States Exposition was held on September 15 in Springfield, Massachusetts.

The Pennsylvania team took first place and its three members were as follows: Tracy Ross, Mount Joy AVTS, a Columbia High School student took first place; Lori Drager, Mount Joy AVTS, a Hempfield High School student took fifth place; Barb Hess, York Vo-Tech AVTS, a Dover High School student took seventh place.

Their coach was Daniel Helwig, Instructor at the Mount Joy AVTS. Chris Snavely took seventh place in the Horticulture contest. The Pennsylvania team took third place.

Solanco Fair receives $5,000 in matching funds

QUARRYVILLE - The Southern Lancaster County Community Fair received a check for $5,000 in matching funds from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Fair Fund, in ceremonies held on the fairgrounds on Quarryville.

The $5,000 check, for the construction of a pole barn, was presented by James Sumner, Director of the Bureau of Markets, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. The funds were made available through a special allocation of the Pennsylvania State Fair Fund, aimed at promoting capital improvements at fairgrounds with the Commonwealth.

Sumner said that county fairs are important to agriculture. "They are a way for farmers to compete with other farmers to improve the quality of our crops and livestock. At the same time, fairs provide a great opportunity to promote a better understanding of farm life and rural Pennsylvania," he said.

The Pennsylvania State Fair Fund is funded by returns from horse and harness racing revenues. In addition to this year's matching funds program, another $1.9 million has been earmarked for distribution to the 107 fairs in the state to cover costs of events exhibitions and premiums for 1978.

Including this year's matching funds, the Southern Lancaster County Community Fair received a total of $14,735 from the Fair Fund this year.

State Representative Gibson E. Armstrong from the 100th District also participated in the ceremonies.

Consumers receive quality meat for food dollar

HARRISBURG — The results of a survey of ground meats, conducted by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Foods and Chemistry, shows that Pennsylvania consumers are receiving good quality for their food dollar.

According to the survey, an "impressive" 93 per cent of ground beef and fresh sausage samples collected throughout the state were in compliance with state laws. State Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell said this figure is doubly impressive when one considers that the sampling was done on a random, unannounced basis.

A total of 1,733 samples of ground meat products were collected by food inspectors beginning January 2, 1979. Of the total samples, only 127 violations were found. The samples were tested for high fat and water content as well as the presence of artificial preservatives.

Hallowell said that during sampling and testing through August 15, only 65 of 1,083 ground beef samples showed evidence of high fat contents. None of the ground beef samples showed evidence of preservatives.

Of 688 samples collected of fresh sausage products, 49 were high in fat content. Two sausage samples showed the presence of preservatives, and eight were in violation for excessive fat contents.

The Agriculture Secretary said he was pleased with the results of the survey, and noted that "the meat industry and retail stores are doing a good job of protecting themselves and their consumers by its voluntary compliance with the law. This assures consumers that even in ground and processed meats, they can be fairly well certain that they are receiving a product which is what it claims to be."

He noted that five of the seven agricultural regions in the state showed less than ten percent violations in the survey period. "However, in the northeast region, sampling will be continued at this time to monitor fat and water content. In the southwest central region, testing will continue in sausage products only."

The percentage of samples found in violation of the food laws, by region, are: northwest, eight per cent; northcentral, 1.5 per cent; northeast, 13 per cent; southwest, ten per cent; southwest central, 11 per cent; southeast central, 5 per cent; and southeast, 4 per cent.

Hallowell said that sampling would continue on a random basis until compliance with the law reached more than 90 per cent. "Monitoring meat content is one way open to us to determine whether we are being effective in following our responsibilities under the law," he said. "By random sampling, we should be getting the best information we can on overall compliance with the law. And the results of the survey being conducted this year have been most satisfactory."

Leiser is repeat winner as Pork Cookout King

YORK - He raises hogs. He buys and sells hogs. He sells feed for hogs. And he cooks hogs, as well.

While the pungent, mouth-watering smell of grilling pork drifted across the rain-washed fairgrounds, Leiser pleased the judges with his table-setting and decorative serving of the winning dish, including selecting a wine that would set off the flavors just right.

Dubbed "Dutch Pork Roll," Leiser's winning entree' earned him the $75 first prize and will be grilled in statewide competition at Gettysburg during the October Apple Harvest Festival.

Leiser and his family have 450 feeder hogs on their Windsor farm and he is an area manager for Pennfield, Inc.

Joe Sheffer of Hanover won $60 as the second place cookout king and third was Allan Barnett of Red Lion who was awarded $50 for his efforts.

Judges for the annual event, held in the livestock exhibit area, were Philip Smyser, Diane Moyer and Beth Hershey.

State FFA poultry judging champion

Karen Long prepares for the local fair season

By DEBRA STRICKLER

WILLOW STREET-This past summer Karen Long, a Penn Manor High School sophomore, had quite an achievement. She broke a 40 year record at the State Poultry Judging Contest, sponsored by agricultural education teachers in cooperation with the Penn State Department of Poultry Science.

This is one of the most comprehensive contests in the nation, according to Herbert C. Jordan, Extension specialist in poultry science at Penn State. In order to break the record, Karen earned a 91.7 per cent total composite score judging nine classes of poultry and eggs plus giving near perfect oral reasons on a class of four laying hens.

She competed with 43 other students in judging exterior shell eggs, as well as interior quality of broken out eggs. Each competitor candled eggs, and judged a class of leghorn pullets and a class of hens for egg production. Ten poultry ailments were identified by each studenat and a class of pullets and one of layers was judged on a keep or cull basis.

Karen does not live on a poultry farm; therefore, a great deal of studying was needed to prepare her for the competition. She studied various poultry texts and practiced at area poultry farms. A county competition was held at Weaver's of New Holland in which Karen placed ninth. She then went on to beat the county competitors at the state contest.

As the Pennsylvania's highest scoring individual, Karen is looking forward to attending the National FFA Convention at Kansas City in November. In the meantime, Karen is quite busy preparing for the West Lampeter Community Fair.

Although she will not have to judge poultry at the fair, she will be kept busy preparing her animals for livestock contests.

Karen lives on a 20 acre farm south of Willow Street, and has occupied the barn and meadow with her swine, sheep, and Aryshire calf, all of which are FFA projects.

Her interest in animals and FFA began in the sixth grade at Marticville Middle School when Karen decided to join the Junior FFA Club during an activity period. She convinced her father to purchase a hog for a project. Since the seventh grade, Karen has entered her hogs in the West Lampeter Fair. This past year she competed in the Lancaster County FFA hog show.

Through her achievements with the hog project and her enthusuastic interest in the FFA club at Penn Manor, Karen was able to obtain chain animals. Last year she received sheep, a bee hive, and a registered Aryshire heifer. As chain animals, the first offspring will be given to new FFA members to help start a project, and the chain will continue.

Although Karen won the highest honor in the State Poultry Judging Contest, she does not live on a poultry farm. Her closest association with poultry, is the racing pigeons that have become a family hobby. Karen is proud of the family trophies and certificates. A pigeon's band is inserted in a time clock and the exact time of its return is recorded.

The heifer, registered "Walnut Hills High-Annie" is a favorite of Karen's. As she calls "Annie", the heifer can be seen coming through the meadow for its evening feeding. "Inky", an Angus-Holstein calf is another pet that occupies the meadow with the Aryshire calf.

Karen is excited about showing the Aryshire heifer in both the Solanco and West Lampeter Community Fair.

This week she will spend time clipping and washing the animals in preparation for the fair. The vo-ag teachers at Penn Manor are helpful in preparing the animals for fair competition. Mr. Smith will help Karen clip and trim the calf. Mr. Birchler makes frequent stops to check on the hogs and sheep that are to be exhibited.

During the weekends Karen participates in an unusual sport. Her entire family has a keen interest in pigeon racing. Four years ago they began racing as a family. In the recent years, Karen and her younger brother and sister have decided to race on their own. As members of the Garden Spot Sportsmans Pigeon Club, the Long children fly from Rentavin Loft, located on the side of the barn.

The main objective of a pigeon race is to discover the pigeon that can return home the fastest. They are clocked on their return home and the winners are named on the basis of who flew the most yards in a minute.

As a family the Longs have participated in a 600 mile race in which they took highest honors. In a long distance race a truck from the United Pigeon Combine travels around to various pigeon clubs collecting their entries. The pigeons are then driven to a specific area and released to find their way home. For the 600 mile race, they were taken to Georgia. Over weekends many races begin in Maryland or Virginia.

The interest in pigeon racing began with Karen's grandfather. He had participated in the sport for 40 years. Karen's father in actively involved and maintains his own breeders.

Karen is really excited about the sport and encourages anyone interested to become involved with a local racing club.

Similarly, Karen will encourage young people to join their school's FFA chapter. Although she is not certain of her futute plans, Karen hopes to keep involved on the farm. As she travels to the local fair and the National FFA Convention this fall, she will be thankful for the opportunities FFA has provided.

Md. firm charged with violation

NEW YORK, N.Y.—Cumberland Stock Yards, Inc., operator of a livestock market at Cresaptown, Md., has been charged with violating trust account and prompt payment requirements of the Packers and Stockyards Act.

The firm draws livestock consignments from western Maryland.

In an administrative complaint, the U.S. Department of Agriculture charged that the firm.

Endangered prompt accounting and payment to livestock consignors by having shortages in and failing to properly maintain its custodial account for proceeds received from the sale of consigned livestock; and

Issued insufficient funds checks and failed to pay, when due, net proceeds due to consignors from the sale of their livestock.

The market has a right to a hearing before the USDA administrative law judge. If the evidence supports the charges, it would be placed under a cease and desist order. Its registration also could be suspended.

CARLOAD SPREADER SALE

For large dairymen and the big feeders, here is the capacity you need to cope with big volume manure handling. Heaped load capacity of 271 or 343 cu. ft. ranks these tandem-axle models among the biggest spreaders on the market. Both have the same Bear Claw paddle design and the straight-through underframe that greatly reduces strain on the spreader box. These big, rugged spreaders are equipped with double aprons and Graetz chains to move bigger volumes with ease. Both are equipped with two-speed mechanical drive. Bogie axles and tandem wheels take on rough ground and ditches with little twist or dip. Off-center mounting lightens weight on front wheels, providing better cornering and less rutting in soft ground.

The beater assembly on both models has 20 Bear Claw paddles across six feet of interior width. Bottoms are constructed of rugged pentatreated, ¾-inch marine type plywood. The sides are constructed of corrosion resistant steel with a lifetime guarantee to the original owner.

The 575 is rated at 271 cu. ft. heaped capacity and is ideal for large feeding and dairying operations with daily spreading chores.

The 595, at 343 cu. ft. heaped capacity is one of the largest spreaders on the market, capacity-matched for the biggest manure handling tasks.

The 550, 540 and 530 spreaders are smaller models with single axles. Designed with the same performance and reliability features of the larger ones, these models have heaped capacities from 148 to 216 cu. ft.

Spray program developed for Scotch Pine disease

UNIVERSITY PARK - Until recently, growers of Scotch pine Christmas trees may have wished their products were "liquid scotch" instead of timber. Their trees were being damaged by a fungus causing an average loss of $1.00 to $1.25 per tree.

But now a fungicidal spray program has been developed which reduces infection from 60 per cent in unsprayed trees to two per cent in sprayed plantations. The treatment came from research by Dr. William Merrill and associates in the College of Agriculture at Penn State.

The fungus causes a yellowing and shedding of needles one-year-old or older during late summer and fall. This condition has made some Christmas trees unsalable and has caused up to 25 per cent losses in other plantations, Dr. Merrill said. The disease also occurs in tree nursery seedbeds.

The disease is named Naemacyclus needlecast, since it is caused by the fungus Naemacyclus minor. Discovered in Pennsylvania in 1972, the fungus has affected Christmas tree production in the Lake States and the Pacific Northwest. The needlecast is found statewide in Pennsylvania.

The spray is now being field-tested by growers in various parts of the Commonwealth. The present spray program has one drawback. Three applications are needed during the spring and early summer to be effective.

This year a single application of a more persistent experimental fungicide reduced infection from about 50 per cent in unsprayed trees to around 4 per cent in sprayed trees. This newest spray program will be field-tested by growers in 1980. Being experimental, the fungicide is not yet registered for use.

"Thus it appears that Naemacyclus needlecast, currently the most serious disease affecting Scotch pines in Pennsylvania, will be brought under control in the near future," Dr. Merrill predicted.

He said the disease has three infection periods—mid-July to mid-August, mid-October to early December, and the spring and summer of the following year. The single fungicide, the least costly per growing season, is believed to be most effective when applied in late April and early May.

Dr. Merrill outlined the symptoms of this needlecast. First, infected needles turn yellow with prominent brown bars appearing across the needles. Then fruiting bodies of the fungus develop within these brown areas from late October through early December. Infected needles are being shed during the fall and winter. Spores produced on the shed needles infect other needles, including those newly elongated.

"The third infection period is the most damaging one," Dr. Merrill stated. "Up to 100 per cent of the needles may become infected. Although the infection period extends from April to August, most infection occurs during short periods in April or May when the weather favors growth of fungal spores," he added.

For some years, Naemacyclus needlecast has been confused with aphid damage. Both result in yellowing and shedding of one-year-old or older needles in late summer and fall, it was noted. However, the prominent brown bars caused by Naemacyclus are not produced by aphids.

Dr. Merrill and associates are on the faculty of the research division of the College of Agriculture, the Pennsylvania Agricultural Experiment Station.

Farmer-owned reserve sorghum released

WASHINGTON, - Grain sorghum has again reached the price at which owners may withdraw the commodity without penalty from the farmer-owned grain reserve.

Producers may immediately remove their sorghum from the reserve by repaying their Commodity Credit Corporation price support loans.

John Goodwin, CCC acting executive vice president, pointed out that release of the reserve does not require farmers to redeem or sell their grain at this time.

Goodwin said that the five-day moving average market price for sorghum was $4.33 per hundredweight on September 5. The reserve release level for a feed grain is reached when the market price is 125 per cent of the commodity's loan rate. That level is $4.24 per hundredweight for sorghum.

Sorghum was first released June 22 when the price was $4.25 per hundredweight. The release authorization was withdrawn August 1 when the price dropped to $4.21 per hundredweight.

Approximately 29 million hundredweight of sorghum are in the reserve. Farmers receive storage payments annually in advance on this grain from the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Upon repayment of the loan, farmers may keep the storage payments earned through the date of repayment. If the loan is not repaid, storage credit will continue through the end of October.

On Oct. 31, USDA will review the average prices for sorghum to determine if the release authorization should remain in effect. If release continues, storage payments will stop in those states where the price remains above the release level.

Data used by CCC in determining the release level include a daily report by Agricultural Marketing Service which shows prices bid by buyers at selected markets, and a month-end Economics, Statistics, and Cooperatives Service (ESCS) report of prices received by farmers, showing the previous month's average prices and the current mid-month prices.

The daily markets reviewed for sorghum are Kansas City and Texas. The five-day average of these market prices, adjusted to reflect prices revealed by farmers, were the basis for today's action.

Soybean growers host Soviet poultry team

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The Soviet Union's expanding poultry industry represents increased markets for soybeans and soybean meal according to the American Soybean Association.

"A Soviet citizen currently eats about one-third as much poultry as a U.S. citizen," says ASA President Allan Aves, a soybean grower from Kirkland, Illinois. "The Soviet Union has set a long-term goal to increase per capita poultry consumption by 66 percent. Poultry numbers in the USSR have increased 20 percent over the last four years while the poultry inventory on state farms has increased 28 percent. As a result, we expect the Soviet Union to become an expanding market for soybeans. And, ASA has developed two market development activities for this fall which we believe will encourage the Soviets to import American soybeans."

ASA, in cooperation with the Foreign Agricultural Service, will host a high-level Soviet Poultry Team from September 25 through October 8. That will be followed by ASA's participation in a US-USSR agribusiness symposium conference in Moscow on October 15-19.

"The five-member Soviet Poultry Team hopes to learn the latest U.S. technology in broiler production and processing," Aves said. "In addition to increasing poultry production, the Soviets hope to improve production efficiency. The U.S. currently produces broilers about eight times more efficiently than the Soviets."

"We're excited about the market potential of the Soviet Union. Over the past three years, they have imported about 48 million bushels of soybeans a year. We conservatively estimate that they could increase their soybean imports five-fold by the late 1980's. We believe our market development activities will assist the Soviets in meeting their protein needs."

'Shelf' on tree signals trouble

MEDIA — When heart rot becomes serious in most large trees there is no outward sign of rotten wood. However, according to experts, there is a warning that you should observe. Heart rot is caused by any one of a number of fungi. And each fungus eventually produces a conk or a shelf on the branch or trunk that is rotten. If a person looks carefully he may see white, yellow, red, or brown-shelflike objects on the side of the tree. This could mean that heart rot is disintegrating the inside of the wood. And with September and early October may come some of the devastating hurricanes that hit us every year or so. If odd-looking growths or conks are found on the tree, a reputable tree expert can identify that particular fungus. He can tell if the branch should be removed, or the entire tree cut down. A person may hate to lose the tree now, but it might be a lot better than a windstorm resulting in the loss of not only the tree, but also a house, or car, or injury to a family member.

Using extra large eggs for baking may cause cakes to fall when cooled.

Grant to receive medal from Japan

PARK RIDGE, Ill. - Allan Grant, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, will receive a Medal of Honor this month from the nation's foremost trading partner, Japan.

Grant, currently leading a trade mission to Russia, will fly directly from Moscow to Tokyo, Japan, where he will receive the award from the Japanese Minister of Agriculture. The Japanese government will recognize Grant for his long interest and personal serviced in furthering Japanese agriculture and American-Japanese understanding. This recognition is particularly due to his leadership in the Japanese-U.S. farmer trainee exchange program.

John Datt, secretary and administrator of the three million member-family farm organization said that Grant will be presented the award at the Ministry of Agriculture. He will return to Chicago September 17, after being honored at a reception at noon that day.

"Grant will, in that one period of a few days, visit each of the two biggest customers for American farm exports," said Datt.

Japan, long our number one trading partner, purchased $4.4 billion worth of farm products from the United States last year. Russia recently moved into second place with purchases totaling $1.7 billion, mostly grain, last year.

Self determination in Pa. land use legislation

Editor's Note: This article was written by William M. Carroll, Professor of Agricultural Economics Extension at Penn State.

STATE COLLEGE — The Pennsylvania Municipalities Planning Code, originally Act 247 of 1968, establishes the basic authority for the exercise of municipal land use controls in Pennsylvania.

The purpose of the act is to protect and promote safety, health, and morals; to help the coordinated development of municipalities, other than cities of the first and second class; to provide for the general welfare by guiding and protecting amenity, convenience, future governmental, economic, practical, and social and cultural facilities, development and growth as well as to improve governmental processes and functions; to guide uses of land and structures, type and location of streets, public grounds and other facilities; and to permit municipalities, other than cities of the first and second class, to minimize such problems as may presently exist or which may be foreseen. The further intent of the act is that any recommendations by any planning agency to any governing body are to be advisory only.

Amendments to the Planning Code by the 1978 session of the General Assembly provide for additional local land use options, and local self determination in the organization of planning agencies and in the content of land use regulations.

This article gives a brief outline of some of the provisions of the Municipalities Planning Code and some of the amendments through 1978. It is not a legal interpretation of the code and is intended for residents and municipal officials of Pennsylvania.

Additional information and copies of Act 247 as amended are available on request from the Bureau of Community Planning, Department of Community Affairs, South Office Building, Harrisburg, PA 17120. Phone: 717-787-7400.

Subdivision and land development

Each municipality may regulate subdivisions and land development by ordinance. The ordinance may require that the development of all plats of land in the municipality be submitted for approval to the local government or to a planning agency specifically named for this purpose.

When a county has adopted a subdivision and land development ordinance, a certified copy of the ordinance is sent to every municipality in the county, plus copies of all amendments to the ordinance. The power of county governments to enact county subdivision and land development ordinances is limited to lands within municipalities which have no such ordinance in effect when the ordinance is approved by the county government, and lasts until the municipality's own ordinance is in effect and is filed with the county planning agency. The municipality sends a copy to the county planning agency for review, with a fee to cover the costs of review and report.

Any municipality other than a county may adopt by reference the county's subdivision and land development ordinance as its own. It may also designate the county planning agency as its own agency for the review and approval of plats.

change zoning ordinances to carry out the intent of a comprehensive plan. Again, the power of county government to enact zoning ordinances applies only to land within municipalities that is not covered by a local zoning ordinance, and lasts until the municipality's own zoning ordinance goes into effect.

Zoning ordinance provisions as amended

Of special interest to agriculture are code additions in 1978 to zoning ordinance provisions. Zoning ordinances may permit, prohibit, regulate, restrict, and determine:

1. Uses of land, watercourses, and other bodies of water.
2. Size, height, bulk, location, erection, construction, repair, maintenance, alteration, razing, removal, and use of structures;
3. Areas and dimensions of land and bodies of water to be occupied by uses and structures, as well as areas, courts, yards, and other open spaces, and space to be left unoccupied; and
4. Density of population and intensity of use.

In addition, zoning ordinances may contain:

1. Provisions for special exceptions and variances administered by the zoning hearing board, in accordance with the act;
2. Provisions for conditional uses to be allowed or denied by the governing body after recommendations by the planning agency, following specific standards and criteria set forth in the ordinances;
3. Provisions for the administration and enforcement of such ordinance;
4. Such other provisions as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this act; and
5. Provisions for the protection and preservation of natural resources and agricultural land and activities (added by 1978 amendment).

Zoning purposes as amended

The provisions of zoning ordinances are designed:

1. To promote, protect, and facilitate one or more of the following: the public health, safety, morals, general welfare, coordinated and practical community development, proper density of population, civil defense, disaster evacuation, airports and national defense facilities, the provision of adequate light and air, police protection, vehicle parking and loading space, transportation, water, sewage, schools, public grounds, and other public requirements, as well as
2. To prevent one or more of the following: overcrowding of land, blight, danger and congestion in travel and transportation, loss of health, life, or property from fire, flood, panic, or other dangers. Zoning ordinances must be made in accordance with an overall program, and with consideration for the character of the municipality, its various parts, and the suitability of the various parts for particular uses and structures.
3. To preserve prime agricultural and farmland considering topography, soil type and classification, and present use (added by 1978 amendment).

The addition to zoning ordinances of provisions for the protection and preservation of natural resources and agricultural land and activities reflects the current public interest in natural resource management.

Including the preservation of prime agricultural and farmland in zoning purposes makes it more specific that exclusive agricultural zoning is a local option under the Pennsylvania Municipalities Planning Code.

Joint municipal planning commissions

The governing bodies of two or more municipalities may, by ordinance or resolution, authorize the establishment, participation in, and support of a joint municipal planning commission. The number and qualifications of the members of such a planning commission, and their terms and methods of appointment or removal, are to be agreed upon by the governing bodies. Members of a joint municipal planning commission serve without salary, but may be paid expenses incurred in the performance of their duties. The commission elects a chairman for a period of one year, who may be re-elected. The commission creates and fills such other offices as it may determine. Every commission adopts rules for its transactions, findings, and determinations, which are part of the public record. Each participating municipality, upon the request of the joint muncipal planning commission, may assign to the commission any municipal employee to make special surveys or studies.

Finances, staff, and program. a) The governing bodies of municipalities have the authority to appropriate funds for the operation of a joint municipal planning commission. With the consent of all the governing bodies, the commission may also receive grants from federal or state governments, or from individuals or foundations, and make contracts with them. The commission can appoint such employees and staff as needed for its work, and contract with planners and other consultants for services to the extent permitted by its financial resources. It may also perform planning services for any municipality which is not a member and charge fees for the work. A joint municipal planning commission may also prepare and sell maps, reports, bulletins, or other materials and establish reasonable charges for them.

b) A joint municipal planning commission may provide planning assistance and do planning work, including surveys, land use studies, urban renewal plans, technical services, and other elements of comprehensive planning in and for any participating municipality. For this purpose it may, with the consent of all the governing bodies, accept any funds, personnel, or other assistance from federal or state governments, individuals, or foundations.

Preparation of comprehensive plan. Every joint municipal planning commission must prepare and maintain a comprehensive plan to guide the development of the participating municipalities.

Cooperation. Every joint municipal planning commission should encourage the cooperation of the participating municipalities in matters which concern the integrity of the comprehensive plan. To help coordinate its work, all municipalities and public officials are required when asked to provide the commission within a reasonable time with the available maps, plans, reports, statistical, or other information the commission may need for its work.

"HARVESTALL® CHILLCURING WORKS. We get excellent quality grain at a fraction of heat-dry cost."

"Our first experience with the Harvestall Chillcuring system was with the 1978 corn crop. We put 24% to 28% moisture corn in the bins in late November and followed the Chillcuring principle as instructed. The system worked perfectly.

"We sold the corn at an extra price advantage because of its fine quality. Loads tested from 14% to 15% moisture. Test weight per bushel was from 56 to 58 lbs. and the corn looked very bright and attractive

"We do not have exact cost figures because of a combination electrical installation with our new potato storage facility However, we do know that it will be only a fraction of what we were losing at the elevator, where they were drying our corn with oil and gas fired hot air dryers. We expect the same advantages with our certified seed wheat, oats and rye this summer.

"Another great advantage to owning your own Harvestall system is the increased efficiency at harvest You can eliminate time wasting trips to the elevator and waiting in line to unload

"With the Harvestall you can sell your grain when you decide the time and price are right And you can be sure the quality is excellent if you follow the Harvestall Chillcuring system correctly "

The Harvestall Chillcuring System

It's simple When grain comes out of the field it's a living seed So instead of destroying the seed with high heat moisture is removed with natural air ventilation The grain keeps all its feed value, there is less shrinkage than with heat drying because only moisture is removed, not dry matter You'll never see white dust in Chillcured corn You actually save half of what you're used to losing in heat shrink

There's no gas or oil to buy Natural air carries away heat and moisture as the corn releases it

Harvestall Chillcuring is a back-to-basics system that just simply makes good sense Find out more about it prehensive plan may enact, amend, or repeal joint municipal zoning ordinances to put the plan into effect or to accomplish any of the purposes of the municipalities planning code. A municipality may enact a joint municipal zoning ordinance which has been or is to be enacted by each municipality cooperating in the plan.

Joint Municipal Comprehensive Plan.

a) The governing body of a municipality, by formal action, may advertise a proposed joint municipal comprehensive plan, with 60 days from the date of the advertisement to adopt such a plan. b) During this period of time, the governing body does not have to consider any landowner's curative amendment.

Intention to enact zoning ordinances.

a) After or at the same time as the adoption of a joint municipal comprehensive plan, the governing body of a municipality cooperating in that plan may declare its intention to enact a zoning ordinance by advertising it with 120 days from the date of the advertisement to enact such an ordinance. b) During this period of time, the governing body does not have to consider any landowner's curative amendment.

Adoption of regional zoning ordinance.

a) The governing body of each municipality participating in the joint municipal comprehensive plan must adopt the regional zoning ordinance in order for the ordinance to be effective. b) Once the regional ordinance is in effect, the municipal zoning ordinance is null and void.

Amendments to regional zoning ordinance. a) Amendments to the regional zoning ordinance must be approved by a simple majority of all participating municipalities, including those which will be physically affected by the proposed amendment. b) The same procedures are to be followed in amending the regional zoning ordinance as for municipal zoning ordinances.

A regional zoning hearing board. a) A regional hearing board has the same powers and duties in the region as the zoning hearing board now has in enforcing municipal zoning ordinances. b) Each municipality must appoint one person to serve on the regional hearing board.

Intention to withdraw. A municipality may announce its intention to withdraw from the regional zoning ordinance, the regional zoning hearing board, and the joint municipal comprehensive plan by passing a resolution. The withdrawal does not become effective for a period of 3 years from the date of the withdrawal resolution.

A decade of amendments

In 1968 the basic authority for municipal land use controls in Pennsylvania was established by Act 247, the Municipalities Planning Code. After a decade of amendments the local government self determination feature of the legislation continues in several ways.

Any recommendations made by any planning agency to any local governing body are advisory only.

Appointments to any planning agency are made by members of the governing body: township supervisors or commissioners, borough and city council members, and county commissioners.

The planning agency is required, at the request of the local government, to prepare the comprehensive plan for the development of the municipality and present it to the local government for their consideration; and to keep records of its actions for the municipal officials.

The local governments of two or more municipalities may by ordinance authorize the establishment of and participation in a joint municipal planning commission. Each cooperating municipality may enact, amend, or repeal joint municipal zoning ordinances.

A municipality may announce its intention to withdraw from the regional zoning ordinance, the regional zoning hearing board, and the joint municipal comprehensive plan, by passing a resolution. The withdrawal does not take effect for 3 years from the date of the withdrawal resolution.

Pennsylvania Bureau of Community Planning

The Bureau of Community Planning is responsible for the Pennsylvania Department of Community Affairs' planning grants and technical assistance programs. Through these programs, direct grants and staff assistance are provided to communities, counties, and regions to prepare and put into effect community development plans, with particular emphasis on land use and housing. An aim of the Bureau is to ensure that local elected officials have the planning tools with which to make sound decisions on both long and short range community development goals.

There are three divisions in the central office in Harrisburg, and five regional state offices are maintained.

Community Planning Division. Administers the federal and state comprehensive planning assistance programs. Provides comprehensive planning advice to municipal and county planning agencies and local government in preparing and carrying out proposals for planning grants. Conducts investigations and prepares reports regarding the effectiveness of planning programs and how they are carried out. Coordinates the Bureau's planning activities with related activities of local, state, and federal agencies.

Regional Planning Division. Responsible for establishment and maintenance of relationships with the multi-county regional planning and development districts. Develops Bureau alternatives and strategies concerning district-state activities. Arranges for comprehensive planning assistance and advice to these planning and development agencies. Coordinates Bureau activities with the Office of State Planning and Development, Department of Commerce and other state agencies concerned with multi-purpose development districts. Administers the Appalachian Regional Development Commission highway-related development planning program (201A-11). Responsible for conduct of the Farmers Home Administration area development assistance planning grant to Department of Community Affairs.

Planning Services Division. Provides technical assistance to municipalities in the preparation of land use controls, such as zoning ordinances and subdivision regulations. Assists municipalities with historic preservation — establishment of districts and development of ordinances.

Prepares brochures and other material on the planning process to be used by local government officials, planning commission members, and interested citizens. Conducts planning studies and prepares comprehensive plans for various local governments. Develops training courses on the planning process for local government officials and planning commission

U.S.D.A. proposes processing inspection program

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman proposed a voluntary quality control program to improve and modernize inspection of processed meat and poultry products.

"Voluntary quality control provides for more effective and efficient use of inspectors," she said. "The system is more effective in consumer protection because it relies on objective factors, such as lab analysis and recorded controls, in addition to on-site inspection. It also is in line with the president's program to improve the regulatory process. Earlier this year, he pledged to modernize the meat and poultry inspection program."

Under the U. S. Department of Agriculture's proposal, department inspectors would have access to data collected from firms participating in department-approved plant quality control systems.

Foreman said voluntary quality control is the second step in the department's efforts to improve the cost-effectiveness of the meat and poultry programs.

"Voluntary quality control is part of a series of reforms. In April, the department took its first step toward reform and initiated a more efficient inspection method — modified traditional inspection — which modernized procedures for inspecting slaughtered chickens. The reforms will permit improvements in other areas — such as residue detection and control, inspection of imported products and more stringent inspection of problem plants," she said.

"The result will be a strengthened overall inspection program and an improved level of consumer protection," Foreman said. Quality control systems are a significant step in streamlining the inspection program by allowing inspectors to make use of updated technology.

"Companies operating an approved quality control system will have the option of using a special logo as part of their package label," Foreman said.

In quality control systems, critical points in the production process would be monitored. These critical points in processing meat and poultry products are any part of the production where the safety of the product could be affected or accurate labeling of the product could be jeopardized. For example, records would be maintained on the condition of all raw materials and of time and temperature controls. During processing, inspectors observe the specified points to assure that the system is under control.

The proposal would apply only to plants where meat and poultry is further processed into products such as soups, frozen dinners, franks, bologna and other cold cuts. It would not affect slaughtering operations.

Comments on the proposal should be sent in duplicate by Nov. 13 to the Executive Secretariat, Room 3807-S, Food Safety and Quality Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250. The proposal has been published in the Sept. 14 Federal Register.

McClellan named regional director

HARRISBURG - Marlin H. McClellan, 43, of Jersey Shore, Lycoming County, has been appointed Regional Director of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Region Two Office, according to Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell. McClellan assumed his new duties with the Department on August 27, 1979.

As Regional Director, McClellan will be responsible for the day to day operations of the regional office which is located at 675 Rose Street, Williamsport. In addition, McClellan will supervise the work of field staff who operate out of the office.

Hallowell said he was pleased that McClellan had accepted the post. He cited McClellan's extensive background in agriculture and management skills as a major factor in his appointment. "Marlin will be bringing Region Two a complete understanding of Pennsylvania agriculture along with excellent management capabilities," Hallowell noted.

McClellan graduated from The Pennsylvania State University in 1957, receiving his Bachelor Degree in Dairy Science. After graduation and at present, McClellan has been self-employed in the dairy and farm business.

McClellan is active in Little League, past president of the Board of Directors of the Jersey Shore YMCA, and a member of the Lab Directors Association of Pennsylvania.

McClellan is married to the former Martha Thomas of Jersey Shore. They have three children, Susan, 21, Michael, 15, and Daniel, 14.

U. of D.'s Doc Allen chats with R. C. (center) and J. C. Willin after looking in on flock recently vaccinated for respiratory problem. With their father Randall Willin, Sr., two brothers farm and raise broilers in Oak Grove area west of Seaford.

'Doc' Allen makes house calls to chickens

NEWARK, Del. - If you happen across a bright blue Datsun pick-up truck with a "BU HEN" tag parked in front of a broiler house on one of Sussex County Delaware's back roads one of these days, you'll know the University of Delaware's "Doc" Allen is making another house call. House calls themselves are something of a rarity anymore, but what makes Allen's truly unique is the fact that all his patients are chickens.

Dr. Paul H. Allen is the veterinary pathologist in charge of the Poultry Diagnositc Laboratory at the University's Georgetown Substation This is a joint diagnostic and research facility funded in part by an appropriation from the State General Assembly, and in part by federal funds administered through the University of Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station.

In a very real sense this lab represents the front line of attack on the many diseases that plague Delmarva's vast broiler industry. The Delmarva peninsula contains one of the densest poultry populations in the world. In 1979 alone, roughly 400 million broilers will be raised on this small projection of land that makes up lower Delaware, the Eastern Shore of Maryland, and a corner of Virginia Nearly half of these birds will be grown on Delaware farms–mostly in Sussex county, the largest broiler-producing county in the U.S.

Concentration of so many birds in such a small geographic area creates a volatile situation from a disease standpoint. Oldtimers recall the days when it was common for whole flocks to sicken or die from any one of a number of diseases.

Fortunately, because of improved management and more effective vaccines and medication, this is no longer the case. But diseases can still take a heavy toll on profits. A loss of even one per cent (dressed weight) of last year's 397 million broilers meant a loss of about 12 million pounds of meat worth 43.5 cents a pound (wholesale), or more than $5 million.

Much of the reduction in costly disease losses has been due to the readiness of Delmarva poultrymen to adopt the findings of researchers at places like the Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station. Poultry disease research at the Station is conducted in the department of animal science and agricultural biochemistry at the main campus in Newark, and at the Georgetown Substation.

This is where Doc Allen comes in. About 60 per cent of his time is devoted to disease-related research. The other 40 per cent is spent diagnosing sick or dead birds and recommending appropriate treatment for what ails them. This helps minimize losses and contain outbreaks of infectious disease before they reach epidemic proportions. Doing all this keeps Doc pretty busy.

He's not complaining though. One of the things he likes about his present job is the fact that he's able to get out in the field a lot. In this sense his work is similar to the private poultry consulting service he ran in California before coming to Delaware three years ago.

In this sense, too, the Delaware lab is unique among state diagnostic labs across the country. Most of the rest are tied in with their state's regulatory health system and in most instances personnel are not permitted to make field visits. Doc considers this restriction unfortunate. "A lot of the action is in the chicken houses, not in the diagnostic laboratory," he explains. "Unless you get out into the field, how can you identify the management problems which interfere with disease control?"

Dr. Paul Allen and assistant Mary M. Matthews investigate case brought in for analysis. Lab helps keep Delmarva's broilers healthy.

Asked to describe a typical day, Doc just laughs. Some days he spends a good bit of time looking at birds on the request of growers or servicemen. There are phone calls to make to report the results of lab work and recommend appropriate treatment for ailing flocks. He also attends DPI (Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc.) grow-out managers and health committee meetings to discuss current disease problems and determine how to deal with them.

He may be asked to perform some special services sometimes, too–such as locating a chicken from one of the old-type breeder flocks for some graduate student at the University, or sexing young birds for a roaster program. (The cockerels are raised separately from pullets in order to keep feed costs down, since the two sexes have different growth potential.)

Not long ago a local vet referred a parrot to him–from boredom the bird was pulling out all its own feathers. There are other parrot calls from time to time, plus a number of pigeon fanciers. Allen's a consultant, by the way, for the Harvard Medical School's avian projects, which include some heart disease research on pigeons. "There just aren't enough of us poultry vets around," he says, explaining such non-chicken involvements.

'Doc' Allen

Shortly after Doc arrived from California there was a serious poultry disease outbreak on a couple of farms near the Delaware/Maryland border. The fact that he quickly recognized the condition as infectious coryza—a disease common on the West Coast but relatively unknown here-no doubt helped win him local acceptance. (Thanks to prompt DPI and company control efforts, it never spread beyond the two farms on which it was found.)

Occasionally Allen's able to help some grower solve a serious disease problem. One memory that still makes him smile with satisfaction is of a farmer with a frustrating history of poultry respiratory problems that were causing high condemnation rates in the flocks he raised. The condition got so bad that the man was dropped by the company he'd contracted to grow for, and without his broiler income, he was in danger of losing his farm.

Allen and his colleagues at the University took a look at the problem and decided he needed help with his vaccination schedule. They offered to set up one for him to follow and on these terms another company agreed to take the man on. The problem was licked, and he's now one of the top three growers for that company.

There may not be much routine to Doc's job, but one regular commitment that contributes a lot to the success of his work is a weekly meeting with his colleagues in the department of animal science--department head and microbiologist Dr. John K. Rosenberger, virologist Dr. Jack Gelb and immunologist Dr. John E. Dohms. He reports to them his field observations. They in turn keep him posted on the progress of research at their end of the line. In the event of a crisis, the four meet more often. This two-way communication helps keep the University's poultry disease research program atuned to the needs of Delaware's multi-million dollar broiler business.

One research project Allen is working on right now with Rosenberger and Gelb is designed to develop a serological (blood) and virological (virus) profile on flocks of commercially reared broiler chickens on the Delmarva peninsula. With the cooperation of a local integrated broiler company, they're comparing birds from a number of farms with a control flock grown in isolation at the Georgetown Substation. The idea is to get a history of disease development in these flocks, particularly for a condition known as air sacculitis.

They want to see if any pattern emerges over the weeks of growout which gives a clue as to how this disease gets started.

Air sacculitis or air sack disease is a condition which has gained considerable economic importance lately. It results in condemnation losses at the processing plant and appears to be on the upswing. Though it may not seem like much, when you multiply the average air sack condemnation rate of .4 per cent by the 400 million birds likely to be produced on Delmarva this year, it comes to nearly five million pounds of meat which can't pass muster, worth approximately $2 million. If Allen and his colleagues can identify the cause of the infection, perhaps they will be able to develop effective controls for it.

Leg weaknesses and crippling losses are just as costly. On Delmarva alone, leg condemnations cost the industry an average $4.35 per thousand birds processed, according to a 1978 DPI survey. Compounded by processing errors, these losses probably amount to about $3 million annually.

Once thought to be a problem limited to older birds, Doc has identified crippling in flocks only a week or so old. Spotted early, affected birds can be culled to help reduce feed losses. But what's really needed is some way to prevent crippling in the first place. There are several contributing factors.

Rosenberger, Allen and Gelb are attacking the problem from the standpoint of an infectious disease. So far they have succeeded in isolating a number of viruses from the leg joints of crippled birds and have been able to reproduce the condition clinically.

"My value is kind of long range," says Doc, speaking of the kind of service he and his lab perform. He sees his

New Jersey fashion revue winners chosen

HIGHTSTOWN, N.J. — About 100 New Jersey 4-H girls competed in this year's State 4-H Fashion Revue on September 15, in the Old Yorke Inn on Route 130 here.

The girls represented county 4-H clubs across New Jersey and modeled outfits they made during the year at the revue, according to Rosalind Johnson Friedman, Extension Associate in 4-H Youth Development at Rutgers University's Cook College, administrative headquarters of the state's 4-H program.

The day's events began with a pre-luncheon party at 11:30 a.m., with the revue itself starting at 12:30 p.m.

Contestants were at least 14 years old and are all winners of their respective county competitions, held from May to August. The garments they have made included sportswear, dresses, suits, coats and evening gowns.

Jean Curley, 18 of Blairstown, R3, won the 4-H state clothing program. She will be sponsored by Coats and Clark, Inc. to attend the National 4-H Congress in November.

The fashion revue winner was Jacqueline Hanvey, 17, of Upper Saddle River. She will be sponsored by the Simplicity Pattern Company at the National 4-H Congress.

The annual revue is held to provide a showcase for the talents and accomplishments of New Jersey 4-H'ers who have excelled in the 4-H clothing and textiles program within each county, said Friedman.

The 4-H Youth Development Program is directed by the state Cooperative Extension Service at Rutgers and is an educational, out-of-school program serving more than 350,000 youth in New Jersey.

role as a kind of translator, (1) communicating the findings of his University colleagues to poultrymen in language they can understand, and (2) reporting to the researchers his findings in the field.

"If you're going to be very effective in this type of work," he adds, "you can't say no to people." As a result of this service-oriented philosophy, he spends much more than the traditional eight hours a day on his job. "I just wish I'd gotten to Delaware 20 years ago. There are so many exciting challenges to deal with."

Department chairman Rosenberger attributes the success of Delaware's Poultry Diagnostic Lab, as well as its unique closeness to the field, to this sense of commitment. Speaking of the impact of the kinds of decisions Doc is sometimes called on to make, Rosenberger notes, "You stand there and make a million-dollar decision every once in a while. It's not like having a couple of hundred sick chickens on your hands. You're talking about millions of birds."

Role of the farm wife is changing

By JERRY WEBB

NEWARK, Del. — If you're a subscriber to Successful Farming magazine, you've probably noticed a change in recent issues. There's a new emphasis on subjects of interest to women in agriculture. Unless you know a little of the history of Successful Farming, that may not say very much. So let me brief you.

Back in the old days all of the farm magazines had women's sections that dealt with recipes, stitchery, and other appropriate farm wife topics. But then several years ago, perhaps ten, Successful decided to modernize and to deal with only the business side of farming. And so the farm wife pages were tossed out and replaced with things like crops and soils, and how to make more money from farming. Some of the other farm magazines followed suit while others held steadfastly to the farm-home environment philosophy.

Progressive Farmer magazine, for instance, has always maintained that a high farm income is useless without a reasonably high level of family living. To encourage that, each month its editors write about farm women and what they're doing and how they live and how they decorate their homes and what to fix for Christmas dinner and so on. They feature remodeled farm homes and building plans for farm houses and other things that encourage the farm family to improve its standard of living and to become a part of the mainstream of society.

So for years there were those two extremes. Successful Farming devoting no space to the farm wife and Progressive Farmer expending great sums in its editorial effort to include the farm wife.

A lot of things have happened on American farms in the last ten years. Perhaps the Russian grain deal had more immediate impact than anything else, but the movement of farm women to be recognized and to be a part of what's going on in the environment where they live and work has had great impact. Farm women have organized, they've held national meetings, they've picketed, lobbied, and otherwise made their presence known. They've worried a lot more about farm business planning, estate planning, and things like that than they have about patterns and recipes. And they've emerged as a new force in agriculture. Policymakers must now reckon with the organized farm wife groups before they take actions that affect this important segment of the agricultural population.

So finally, in a way Successful Farming must be admitting that it was wrong, that the business side of farming does include a farm wife in most cases, and that she has interests somewhat different than her husband, even though she may be making farming decisions and operating farm machinery. And so the magazine comes back to a commitment of space to the farm wife. And of course Progressive Farmer, Farm Journal and a lot of the other farm magazines continue their long-standing commitment to help the farm wife maintain an improved standard of living for her family. Along with that, they too have recognized the emergence of the farm wife in policy and planning matters and as a true partner in the farming business.

And that's just the beginning. Farm women, who have traditionally raised the children, prepared the meals and run the errands for their hard-working husbands, are finding new things to do on America's farms. Not only are they operating combines and 4-wheel drive tractors, they're managing whole segments of the business like hog farrowing units and broiler houses and dairy barns, while their husbands do other things. And they're having more to say about how the money is spent. The choice between a new pickup truck and a remodeled kitchen is not always in favor of the truck. And when it comes time to fight for better estate tax laws, the farm women are in the forefront.

The long-suffering farm wife, who cooked and canned from dawn 'til dark and got by with one old gingham dress and something to wear on Sunday, has disappeared. In her place has come the modern farm business woman, who doesn't always go to town in a truck, who knows fashion and things to talk about besides canning and kids, and who has as much business savvy as her husband. Granted, she doesn't have the physical strength for old-fashioned farming, but who needs it? She runs a self-propelled, fully powered $50,000 combine and augers grain into a self-unloading wagon that's pulled by an air-conditioned tractor. Her farm chores require no more physical stamina than any other occupation, and when it comes to farm planning and money management, she has a strong interest and a keen ability to manage the buck for the mutual good of the farm family.

Not all farm wives fit this new role and not all of them want to. But those that do are finding encouragement in the farm press and in the offices of farm leaders and farm policymakers. Farm women are being liberated and I think agriculture will be better off because of it.

Harshbarger named FCA visiting scholar

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Dr. C. Edward Harshbarger, assistant vice president and economist with the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City, today joined the Farm Credit Administration's economic analysis staff for a ten-month tour under its visiting scholar program.

While with FCA, Harshbarger will work with Dr. John C. Moore, assistant director, Economic Analysis Division, on studying the future economic environment as background for FCA long-range planning.

Before joining the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City in 1970, Harshbarger was an assistant professor of economics at the University of Missouri. His teaching and research were primarily in agricultural finance and farm management.

Harshbarger, who earned his B.S. and M.S. degrees from the University of Illinois and his Ph.D. from Purdue University, has published numerous articles in "Economic Review," the monthly journal of the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City. In addition, he is section leader for the agricultural and rural credit policy course at the University of Wisconsin's Graduate School of Banking in Madison.

Crickets are destructive pests indoors

NEWARK, Del. — Watching crickets fight each other is an ancient oriental sport. In this country, the fight is between the homemaker and the cricket. And it's not a sport; it's war.

A cricket indoors is a noisy, destructive pest, says University of Delaware Extension entomologist Frank Boys. Although they're not likely to chew synthetic fabrics, they damage cottons, woolens, silks and other natural fibers — especially if the materials are even slightly dirty.

Delawareans will probably hear a good deal of cricket chirping this Fall. Boys says numbers are way up among these noisy fiddlers, and some are already finding their way indoors. As cooler weather arrives, the invasion will probably pick up. They're attracted by lights and get into houses through cracks, windowsills, and doors.

In Delaware the two most common crickets that invade houses are the field cricket and the house cricket. The field cricket is usually dark brown to black, lives in grassy places, and feeds on plant material. The house cricket is yellowish-brown with three dark bands on the body region behind its head. Generally found in garbage or refuse dumps, it will feed on almost any organic refuse. It may overwinter as an adult in buildings and can be active all year round.

Both kinds of cricket are bad news inside the house. The amount of damage they do depends on how many are present and how long they're active. But, warns Boys, large numbers of field and house crickets may do severe damage in a single night.

Control measures for this destructive pest include both chemical and non-chemical means. Since crickets are most troublesome in dwellings near grassy areas, city dumps and other refuse areas, one should eliminate weeds and dense vegetation around the foundation of your house. Also get rid of any rotting wood, stones, bricks, tile, and other debris where crickets might hide.

A person should take steps to caulk or fill in cracks and other possible points of entry into the house, and keep a fly swatter handy for those individuals which do manage to break through the security system.

If cricket populations are large, one may also need to resort to chemical controls.

Indoors there are a number of convenient ready-to-use solutions or aerosols to choose from, including chlorpyrifos (Dursban), diazinon, or premium-grade malathion. A person can apply these sprays along baseboards, in closets, under stairways, around fireplaces, in basements, on ground level floors and wherever else crickets become a nuisance.

Outside, one can spray foundation walls, window wells, sub-floor crawl spaces, under garbage cans, door thresholds, and other points of entry or possible hiding places. A person should apply Dursban at the rate recommended for lawn pests, or use diazinon 25 per cent EC at the concentration listed on the label for nuisance pests. (One should take care, though, not to use this concentration on plants or in the house.) If necessary, one can reapply any of these materials at one to two week intervals.

When infestations are very heavy, a person may need to treat a five to 10 foot wide band of the soil adjacent to and surrounding the foundation of the house.

Caution. Some liquid insecticides may leave undesirable residues or stains on certain exterior wall surfaces. They may also burn young, tender plants. Also, the solvents in certain insecticides may damage textiles, vinyl tile flooring, and other household surfaces.

Study released on net weight labeling

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The U.S. Department of Agriculture recently asked for public comments on issues raised by a department study on net weight labeling of meat and poultry products.

The study, "Assessment of Proposed Net Weight Labeling Regulations," evaluates regulations proposed Dec. 2, 1977, in response to a petition by California and 47 other states, and to complaints by many consumers.

The intent of the regulation is to enable states to enforce strict net weight standards at retail and to assure that the weight of usable meat and poultry purchased by consumers is at least equal to the weight stated on the package.

The department is providing a 60-day comment period to encourage consumers, industry, state and local weights and measures officials, plus other interested groups to comment on the study, done by the department's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service on request of the department's Food Safety and Quality Service.

The department's proposal drew about 3,000 comments indicating widespread disagreement among both industry and consumers on the need for new net weight rules and their probable economic impact.

The report concludes that:

--the proposals would succeed in achieving the two objectives defined by FSQS--consumers could be assured that the weight of usable meat and poultry purchased is equal to the labeled weight and states would be able to enforce a more strict new weight standard at retail.

--the second objective (enforceable regulations for the states) could probably be accomplished as effectively under a system that allows free liquid as part of the product's net weight.

--the effects of the proposed rule change have been grossly misunderstood by both consumers and producers. Consumers have argued that, without a drained weight rule, they must pay for unusable water. Producers, on the other hand, have argued that the proposal will add to their costs because more product will have to be packed in each consumer package. The study concludes neither assessment is accurate since the amount of drained weight meat available for sale is constant regardless of the net weight rule in effect.

Notice of the availability of the study, including 10 specific net weight labeling questions, was published in the Aug. 31 Federal Register. The department will study the response to the labeling questions, as well as the ESCS report and the recommendations of the December 1978 General Accounting Office report on net weight labeling, before taking any further regulatory action.

Comments on the issue should be sent by Oct. 30 to the executive secretariat, Attn: Annie Johnson, room 3807-S, FSQS, USDA, Washington, D.C., 20250. Call William Dubbert, telephone (202) 447-7470, with oral comments.

Single copies of the report are available free from the Office of Information, room 3606, FSQS, USDA, Washington, D.C., 20250.

Kearns recipient of Reading Fair award

ELVERSON - Thomas C. Kearns, the 18 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Kearns of R.D.1 Morgantown, has been selected as the 1979 Reading Fair Boy Award recipient. This award of $100 was presented to Tom on September 12 at a special banquet at the Fleetwood Grange Hall. Tom is a 1979 graduate of Twin Valley High School, where he was an active officer of the FFA chapter. Tom is currently employed as herdsman for J. Harold Bare, Atglen.

Tom is a 1979 recipient of the Keystone Farmer Degree, and was chosen as the 1979 Berks County Star Agribusinessman. Tom has served as secretary of the Berks County FFA and as Treasurer of the Twin Valley Chapter during the 1978-79 school year.

Tom attended Owen J. Roberts High School until February of his junior year. At Owen J., he served as chapter treasurer also. He has participated in both Berks and Chester County Public Speaking Contests, as well as on the Parliamentary Procedure teams for both chapters. He has attended the Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Coop Institute at Shippensburg for two years. Tom has exhibited his dairy cattle at several local fairs - Kimberton, Kutztown, and Allentown - as well as the Southeastern Pennsylvania FFA Dairy Show and the Pennsylvania Farm Show. Tom served as a member of the chapter dairy judging contest at both the Kutztown and Allentown fairs and the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show. He participated in the Pennsylvania FFA Agricultural Mechanics Contest at Penn State in 1977, and the dairy showmanship contest in 1978. Tom has also represented the chapter in the tractor driving contest at the Kutztown Fair.

One of the biggest highlights of Tom's FFA career to date has been attending the National FFA convention in Kansas City last November where he and Dan Mosteller received the Bronze National Chapter Rating Award.

Tom's projects have been dairy heifers, field corn, veal calves, vegetable garden, and working on dairy farms. Tom has entered his project books in the county and state project book contests where he has won several awards, the most notable of which is a first place out of 175 books in on-farm category, work experience category of the state contest.

Tom's plans for the future include working as a herdsman with the goal of eventually owning his own farm. He is also considering attending an agricultural college.

DEALER INQUIRIES INVITED

Control the environment to slim safely

MEDIA - One of the ways to control eating–and safely reduce–is to control the environment--when, why and where you eat. Experts say that dieters should: arrange to eat in only one room, at one place, sitting down, and not to engage in any other activity while eating. Identify problem foods and either don't buy them or keep them in non-see-through containers. Use smaller plates or spread food out on the surface of the plate. Don't skip meals or become overly hungry or overly tired. This encourages overeating. If you tend to eat from boredom, attempt to substitute a satisfying activity other than eating. When food is prepared, remember that although the types of foods that you eat are important, it is mainly the amount which makes the most difference. Anything can be eaten and still not cause an increase in weight if the amount is controlled. Measuring the amounts of food before you eat eliminates any "extras." Meats should be cooked by broiling, baking or boiling. An increased amount of fat means a large increase in the number of calories which only slows or stops your weight loss progress. Food labels tell a lot about what is in the food. Make a habit of reading the labels on food packages.

Keep in mind that foods labeled "dietetic" do not mean that they can be eaten in unlimited quantites. Likewise, foods considered "Diet foods"–such as cottage cheese or fruit-flavored yogurt have lots of calories that need to be counted.

Juniata names high herds

MIFFLINTOWN - The August 1979 report of the Juniata County Dairy Herd Improvement Assocation included the calculated records of 4060 cows in 81 herds.

There were five high herds in average butterfat production per cow per day. The herd owners included Larry and David Noss of Port Royal, Kenneth Deamer of Thompsontown, W. Harshbarger and Sons of Mifflintown, Clyde D. Moyer of Thompsontown and James V. Wilson of Mifflintown.

Three hundred and sixteen cows completed lactation records of 305 days or less. Petunia, a cow owned by John L. Van Horn, Mifflintown produced 1200 pounds of butterfat and 20,454 pounds of milk. Freeburn and Norman Love, East Waterford, have a cow, #172, which produced 25,038 pounds of milk with 825 pounds of butterfat. In the same herd, #179 produced 952 pounds of butterfat with 23,062 pounds of milk.

Owners of the additional top 15 cows included Keith A. Coddington, Port Royal; John H. Cunningham, Mifflintown; C.R. Henry, Port Royal; Clyde D. Moyer, Thompsontown; Richard B. Crawford, Port Royal; Rodney Conrad, Millerstown; Marvin L. Peoples McAlisterville

★ Safe, Dependable "Zone Heating"
Northco Pig Brooders are excellent for brooding little pigs because they provide "zone-heat". Ideal temperatures for little pigs may be 25 to 30 degrees warmer than needed for the sow. Farmers receive $12.23 for August milk

NEW YORK, N.Y. – Dairy farmers supplying milk plants regulated under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders during August will be paid on the basis of a uniform price of $12.23 per hundred pounds or 26.3 cents per quart. Market Administrator Thomas A. Wilson, who announced August's price, also stated that the uniform farm price was $11.60 per hundredweight in July 1979 and $10.84 per hundredweight in August 1978. The uniform price is a marketwide weighted average of the value of farm milk used for fluid and manufactured dairy products.

The seasonal incentive fund (Louisville Plan) returned a total of $2,969,659.04 or $.359 per hundredweight to the dairy farmers' uniform price for August. This fund was generated by reducing the uniform price paid producers during the high production spring months.

The total amount of milk received from the 17,578 dairy farmers supplying the New York-New Jersey Marketing Area was 831,767,155 pounds during August 1979. This was almost 33.4 million pounds above last year. The gross value to dairy farmers for milk deliveries was $$101,942,628.34. Mr. Wilson explained that this included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not voluntary premiums or deductions authorized by the farmer.

Regulated milk dealers (handlers) utilized 374,238,638 pounds or 45.0 percent of the total amount of milk for Class I. The Class I milk is used for fluid products such as homogenized, flavored, low-test and skim milks. For August 1979, handlers paid $13.01 per hundredweight, or 28.0 cents per quart, for the milk used in Class I products compared with $11.51 a year ago.

The balance of the milk, 55.0 per cent, was used to manufacture Class II products including butter, cheese, ice cream and yogurt. For this milk the handlers paid $11.19 per hundredweight.

The uniform price is based on milk containing 3.5 per cent butterfat. For August 1979, a differential of 14.8 cents was applied to the price for each one-tenth of one per cent that the milk tested above or below the 3.5 per cent standard.

All prices quoted are for bulk tank milk received within the 201-210 mile zone from New York City.

No wheat set-aside needed for 1980

NEWARK — Wheat producers will be eligible for farm program benefits in 1980 without setting aside or diverting acreage, according to O. Joseph Penuel, State Executive Director of the Delaware Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS). However, only those who plant no more wheat than was planted and set aside in 1979 will have the full target price protection.

"We do not want to see fragile or marginal lands brought into wheat production," Penuel said. "The no set-aside decision was not intended to encourage all-out production. Farmers are urged to follow good farming practices in planting their 1980 wheat acreage." He pointed out that acreage not traditionally used for crop production will not be added into a producer's normal crop acreage (NCA) for subsequent years.

The 1979 planted acreage includes credit for set-aside, haying and grazing acreage for payment, prevented planting, and voluntary acreage reductions. Penuel said the 1980 wheat loan rate will be up 15 cents a bushel to $2.50, and the target price is expected to range between $2.95 and $3.25 per bushel. "The 1979 target price was $2.98 but because of the 20 percent required set-aside, it was adjusted to $3.40," the ASCS official explained. The final target price will be announced by March 15.

The national program acreage for wheat for 1980 will be 70 million acres, up from 67.6 million last year. The national acreage is the estimated number of harvested acres that Secretary Bergland determines will produce enough wheat for domestic use, for export, and to maintain an adequate level of carry-over stocks.

Pig survival rates boosted by wire flooring

FORT WAYNE, Ind. — Hog producers hoping to boost their weaning percentages may want to consider trying farrowing crates with woven wire flooring. Recent experiments at the Master Mix swine research farm at Decatur, Indiana, resulted in improved baby pig survival — two more pigs per litter — when sows were farrowed on woven wire floors.

Master Mix researchers compared three different farrowing floors: two-thirds solid concrete with floor heat and one-third concrete slats over an oxidation ditch, 5-inch aluminum slats raised 8 to 10 inches off the solid floor, and 6-gauge galvanized woven wire with 3/8-inch by 1½-inch openings. They found that litters farrowed on the woven wire flooring had the highest weaning percentages, were healthier and gained faster.

Sows farrowed on woven wire weaned 10.3 pigs per litter or 89.6 percent of the total born, compared to 8.6 pigs per litter or 77.5 percent on total aluminum slats, and 8.0 pigs per litter or 72.7 percent on partial concrete slats. Woven wire flooring also promote faster gains, as those pigs gained an average one pound more during the four-week nursing period, compared to pigs on the other two floor types.

"The production increases under different flooring conditions appear to be related to healthier sows and litters," said Dr. Jerry Faber, Master Mix swine research specialist, explaining that fewer health problems were noted with woven wire floors.

Forty-four percent of the sows farrowed on partial concrete slats needed treatment for metritis, mastitis, and agalactia (MMA) symptoms, and almost 18 percent of the litters were treated for scours and joint infections. On the aluminum slats, health problems decreased — less than 30 percent of the sows were treated for MMA symptoms and less than 14 percent of the pigs needed treatment. Woven wire cuts down health problems even more — just 12.5 percent of the sows were treated for MMA symptoms, and pig scours and joint infections were eliminated, Faber said.

"The concrete slats allowed too much moisture and manure to build up on the floor of the crate, causing the hogs to become chilled and exposed to high levels of microorganisms," he explained, adding that the aluminum slats cut down the dampness, but chilling and waste accumulation were still problems.

The woven wire flooring provided a healthier environment for both sows and pigs, Faber said. "First, they have very little contact with a solid floor surface. Second, they're not exposed to bacteria and viruses caused by manure buildup. And, they're not in a moisture-laden environment where the body can become damp and chilled."

"Results of this Master Mix research suggest that more attention should be focused on farrowing crate floor design in order to minimize pig death losses. It has been well documented that extra labor at farrowing — drying the pig, placing it in a warm environment, and providing colostrum soon after farrowing — can produce extra pigs at

Dimilin saves soybean growers money

WASHINGTON, D.C. — An economic impact assessment by two government agencies indicates Dimilin could save soybean growers $7.6 million annually, particularly in areas heavily infested with the velvetbean caterpillar.

According to the report, prepared jointly by a United States Department of Agriculture, State, and Environmental Protection Agency assessment team, Dimilin can control velvetbean caterpillar, green cloverworm and Mexican bean beetle on soybeans at a rate of ½-ounce active ingredient per acre. The projected $7.6 million savings is based on Dimilin's potential to control the soybean pests on 3.1 million acres in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina.

In addition, the study points out Dimilin ultimately could increase soybean yields an estimated $5.8 million annually by preventing severe plant defoliation. Soybean yields usually fall sharply if insects damage more than 30-35 per cent of plant foliage.

Thompson-Hayward Chemical Company, which markets Dimilin in the United States and Canada, has filed petitions with the Environmental Protection Agency to use Dimilin against velvetbean caterpillar, green cloverworm and Mexican bean beetle on soybeans Company officials do not expect any federal soybean registrations this year.

Nevertheless, the insect growth regulator already has received federal registrations to control boll weevil on cotton and the ravenous gypsy moth, which has chomped its way through 15 million acres of timberland since 1920. Dimilin was discovered nine years ago in the laboratories of Philips-Duphar, B.V., Amsterdam, Holland

The insecticide acts on the larva stage by inhibiting the young insect's development of chitin. Velvetbean caterpillars need chitin to develop their tough exoskeletons much as humans need calcium to form bones. Without chitin, the larva's skin ruptures and it dies before reaching reproductive maturity.

Dimilin's proposed label against velvetbean caterpillar will permit two applications at least 20 days apart. Dimilin applications reportedly will cost about $3.50 an acre.

Unlike many conventional neurotoxin insecticides which usually kill target and on-target insects upon contact, Dimilin does not harm big-eyed bugs or other natural enemies of the velvetbean caterpillar. Numerous studies by university toxicologists and Huntingdon Research Center of England show Dimilin has a very low acute mammalian toxicity, does not produce mutations in organisms or offspring and does not accumulate in the food chain.

Pig survival

weaning. Since extra labor is not always available or feasible at farrowing time, especially in larger operations, woven wire flooring may be one way to reduce death losses without increasing the work load," Faber says.

The researcher suggests that hog producers may want to install wire flooring in a few crates to see what affect a flooring change will have in their own operations.

Lampi appointed as legislative liason

HARRISBURG — John B. Lampi, 32, of Bedminster, Bucks County, has been appointed as the Legislative Liason for the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, according to Penrose Hallowell, State Agriculture Secretary. Lampi assumed his duties with the Department on September 5.

As Legislative Liason, Lampi is responsible for the development of the Department's legislative program. He will be working in the preparation of specific legislation and will assign priorities to legislative programs. Lampi will also serve as Secretary Hallowell's liason officer in relations with members of the General Assembly.

Hallowell said he was pleased that Lampi had accepted the assignment. He cited Lampi's background in law and public service as two important factors in his appointment. "John brings to the job a good knowledge of the law," Hallowell said. "He has demonstrated his integrity and his dedication to the public in both public and private practice."

Lampi received his J.D. degree from the Temple University School of Law in 1972. He also completed his undergraduate work at Temple, with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Political Science and German.

From October 1972 until May 1978 Lampi served as Bucks County Deputy District Attorney, where he worked in criminal prosecution. Lampi specialized in the investigation and prosecution of economic crimes.

Last May Lampi joined Donand B. McCoy Associates in Newtown, where he has conducted a general law practice. Lampi is a member of the Bucks County Drug and Alcohol Commission.

He is married to the former Patricia Ann Cane of Trevose, Pa. The Lampi's have two children, Kara, 3, and Erik, 2.

Gasohol requires awareness of safety measures

COLLEGE PARK, MD. – Some problems with hard starting in cold weather and vapor locking in hot weather have been encountered with gasohol. Although slow starting and vapor lock in tractors are annoyances, they would not be regarded as direct safety hazards. However, gasohol does give rise to a potential safety hazard that users must take appropriate action against. And that is the tendency for it to erupt or spurt out of the fuel tank when the cap is removed due to a pressure build-up in the tank because of its high volatility.

This tendency is much more pronounced during warm or hot days, and with tractors with mid-, or above-engine mounted fuel tanks, a common tank location until recently. They are then subjected to heat radiated from the engine as well as to that from the sun, further increasing the inside fuel temperature. With ordinary fuels this is no particular problem, but it may become a problem with gasohol. Needless to say, the fire hazard connected with such fuel spill-overs is considerable and one to be avoided.

Other factors enter into the extent of tank pressure build-up. In most areas, gasoline volatility is tailored to the expected temperatures of the various seasons. "Winter" gasoline is more volatile than summer grades to aid in fast cold weather starts and good performance during "warm-up." But such high volatility is unneeded in the summer–in fact, it probably would result in vapor lock and hot starting troubles.

"Spring" gasoline falls in between, but the allowable volatility of spring gas has been raised recently. Therefore, if on a warm day you were using gasohol made with winter or spring gasoline, the very high volatility of this fuel and the heat would intensify fuel tank pressure and the likelihood of regurgitation.

Fuel tank cap venting is very important with any fuel, but the potential pressure levels from gasohol make it mandatory that the cap fit perfectly and the vent be free and open. However, many caps on older equipment are bent or the vents clogged with dirt. Caps get lost and sometimes are replaced with non-standard ones–and a "few" are stopped-up by a corncob with a rag wrapped around it or some such makeshift

There also could be more likelihood of fuel leaks, as gasohol may speed up the deterioration of gaskets and some of the seals used in a fuel system, especially if they are old and not too sound to begin with. A broken muffler, leaky exhaust manifold or missing heat shield can add extra and unneeded warmth to an adjacent fuel tank, a matter that should be corrected if you are burning gasohol.

Gasohol should be stored in underground tanks. If you are using above-ground storage, locate tanks in a shady, cool place, avoiding direct exposure to the hot sun to minimize losses from in-tank vaporization. Make certain venting is free and open.

Avoid tanks, lines, connectors, and such that contain aluminum. Alcohol picks up aluminum oxide and water, making a white, milky sludge that could settle at the bottom and eventually cause fuel system clogging and other problems in your engine.

All the components of the fuel delivery system should be sound and leak-free. Alcohol, being a good solvent, could dissolve pipe-joint compound in a storage facility and start a leak.

If you observe the proper precautions in storing and handling gasohol, you should have no trouble with it

Lunch available

If you're like most cooks, chances are you've arrived home on occasion to a dinner you forgot to defrost. But there's no need to panic with this handy way to defrost hamburgers. Just place frozen patties in a skillet, searing on both sides over moderate heat until browned. Add a sliced onion, sprinkle with Lawry's Seasoned Salt and cover. Lower heat and cook, shaking pan occasionally, until burgers are thawed. Inside they'll be pink and juicy.

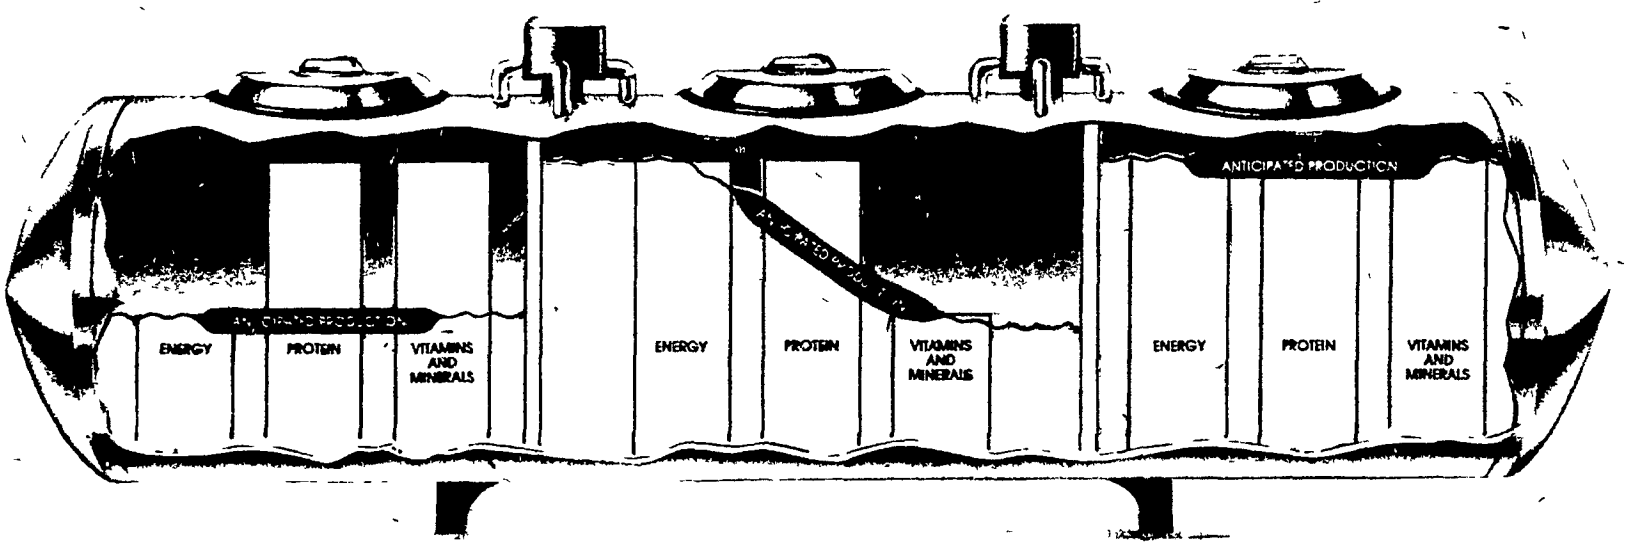
HERE'S WHY YOU SHOULD FEED A PURINA® HIGH-ENERGY MILKING RATION



If you feed a typical dairy ration or soybean meal and corn with a vitamin-mineral premix (left): milk production is limited by low energy levels.

If you feed an ordinary high-energy ration or soybean meal and corn (center): milk production may start out high, but will gradually fall, limited by inadequate levels of vitamins and minerals.

Compare Purina Test Cow Complete or High Octane® 36 Concentrate (right): Precisely balanced nutrients at correct levels with no limitations. You get consistent, top milk production, lactation after lactation.

7,436 cows are giving 60,970 lbs. more milk each day*

Thanks to Purina® balanced, high-energy milking rations

They've proved it! Dairies around the country have switched to Purina Test Cow Complete or High Octane® 36 Concentrate. They've found these rations can be the first step toward increasing their rolling herd average by 2,000 lbs. or more.
Income over feed cost improved, too! Because Purina high-energy milking rations are nutritionally balanced, every mouthful counts for top milking potential.
You could use the Purina performance in your herd. Call us or stop by today. We'll help you figure UP milk income over feed cost with Purina.
